INTRODUCTION

These reports are intended for a general, nonspecialist audience. They run the gamut of the arts and sciences, historical and current events, and should provide the reader with useful introductions to given topics. May they encourage a few happy hours of suggestive thought!

MARXISTS HATE WHITES

A mirror image is a reflected duplication of an object which is identical, the sole difference being that it is reversed in the direction perpendicular to the mirror. The mirror image of a mountain in a lake is identical to the real mountain but shows it pointing downward. Mirrors reverse texts, and in order for a text to be understood in a mirror, the words must be written in the reverse direction. In the twentieth century, the number one, mass sewer religion of our time constructed a brother sewer religion as its offshoot and derivative. The original sewer religion, born in the nineteenth century in fever swamps which spilled into the Reading Room of the British Museum, advocated class war by the lowest criminal strata of society to overthrow the world of the Enlightenment. It advocated war by a subterranean socioeconomic tribe called the proletariat. In the twentieth century, this religion created by Karl Marx created a second revolutionary class called the black proletariat, and gave it the same mission to overthrow the world of the Enlightenment. The new black Marxist ideology was a mirror image of an Aryan hate movement created by one of Marx's most famous students. It was identical to the Aryan original all respects except for the direction of hate. While Adolf Hitler's religion of Aryan power targeted Jews for extermination, the new religion of black Marxism targeted white people for extermination. While Hitler's national socialism condemned liberalism, capitalism and the Enlightenment as Jewish inventions, black Marxism condemned liberalism, capitalism and the Enlightenment as white inventions. In the twenty first century, black Marxism has become the dominant form of Marxism and has raised a fearsome banner across the West, proclaiming: Marxists hate whites. Listen to this hate expressed since the mid twentieth century and hear black Hitlerites on the march against the West. Marxists hate whites. See hatred of whites peddled under the names black power, black nationalism, black belt, March Against Fear, Freedom Organization, Black Panthers and the African Diaspora. See black power support bases place families, homes, schools, offices and neighborhoods in the grip of fear. See hate get on board a train called the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, crash it into whites, and crush them beneath the wheels of murder and mayhem: "Fifty years ago, a slogan, idea and movement was resurrected and reincarnated in Mississippi that would forever change the political landscape in the United States and the African World. On June 16, 1966 in Greenwood, Mississippi, Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) Chair, Kwame Ture (then known as Stokely Carmichael), addressed a crowd of youthful demonstrators and the media covering the militant March Against Fear, and forcefully reechoed our millennial and generational demand for Black Power. The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, Kwame Ture and Willie 'Mukassa' Ricks were not the first ones to use the phrase Black Power. SNCC had used similar words in its position papers and internal documents since at least 1964; and several of its key cadre in Washington, DC, Mississippi and Alabama had been moving towards 'black nationalism' since 1961, through their contact with Malcolm X. SNCC had planned a Black Belt Summer Project in 1965 to build independent freedom organizations (nascent political parties) in 650 counties in the South, from Virginia to Texas, and support bases in the North. It is out of this project that the Freedom Organizations in Alabama, the first Black Panther Parties, emerged in 1966. SNCC helped, thanks, no thanks to the media, to popularize the Black Power slogan, introduce it to a new generation of youth, and spread it to every corner of the United States, the African Diaspora, Africa, and the World." (cooperationjackson.org). Marxists hate whites. See black power peddled under the name critical race theory, a pseudoacademic, pseudointellectual discipline of hate, critical of the Enlightenment, and promoting race theory as the highest form of politics. See black power peddled under the names equity, diversity, inclusion, social justice and culturally responsive teaching. See neoMarxists, race Marxists and black Marxists advocate the establishment of totalitarian tyranny along racial lines. See pseudoacademic journals reformulate proletarian Marxism as a black hate movement,

4 and advocate the seizure of white land and wealth and its redistribution into the hand of black thieves, beggars and killers. See government agencies, public school systems, teacher training programs, employee study units, diversity training programs, public policy frameworks and corporate human resources departments promote black identity politics, condemn capitalism as a regime of white supremacy, white patriarchy and white oppression, and foment race wars and race riots against liberal law and order. See the children of Marx and Hitler, black hoodlums, black activists, black law professors and black critical race theorists, lead a mass movement to overthrow liberal equality, liberal nondiscrimination, liberal declarations, liberal constitutions, liberal charters, liberal amendments, liberal freedom of speech, liberal property rights, liberal civil rights acts and liberal voting rights acts, and with black Marxist fists raised, clenched and thrust forward in a Hitler salute, seek to nullify, veto, abolish and exterminate whites, the world of freedom and the legacies of the Enlightenment: "Critical race theory is an academic discipline, formulated in the 1990s and built on the intellectual framework of identity based Marxism. Relegated for many years to universities and obscure academic journals, it has increasingly become the default ideology in our public institutions over the past decade. It has been injected into government agencies, public school systems, teacher training programs and corporate human resources departments in the form of diversity training programs, human resources modules, public policy frameworks and school curricula. Its supporters deploy a series of euphemisms to describe critical race theory, including equity, social justice, diversity and inclusion, culturally responsive teaching and a Department of Antiracism. Critical race theorists, masters of language construction, realize that neoMarxism would be a hard sell. Equity, on the other hand, sounds nonthreatening and is easily confused with the American principle of equality. But the distinction is vast and important. Indeed, critical race theorists explicitly reject equality—the principle proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence, defended in the Civil War and codified into law with the 14th and 15th Amendments, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. To them, equality represents 'mere nondiscrimination' and provides 'camouflage' for white supremacy, patriarchy and oppression. In contrast to equality, equity as defined and promoted by critical race theorists is little more than reformulated Marxism. In the name of equity, UCLA law professor and critical race theorist Cheryl Harris has proposed suspending private property rights, seizing land and wealth and redistributing them along racial lines. Critical race guru Ibram X. Kendi, who directs the Center for Antiracist Research at Boston University, has proposed the creation of a federal Department of Antiracism. This department would be independent of (ie unaccountable to) the elected branches of government and would have the power to nullify, veto or abolish any law at any level of government and curtail the speech of political leaders and others deemed insufficiently antiracist. One practical result of the creation of such a department would be the overthrow of capitalism, since, according to Kendi, 'in order to truly be antiracist, you also have to truly be anticapitalist.' In other words, identity is the means; Marxism is the end." (What Critical Race Theory Is Really About by Christopher Rufo). Marxists hate whites. See radical black power leftists advocate the violation of the human rights of whites. See black Marxist presidents advocate the expropriation of whites without just compensation and without due process of law. See black Marxist law makers advocate the enslavement of whites to a leviathan marked black equity and black public interest: "South African President Cyril Ramaphosa on Monday defended his country’s new land expropriation law against criticism from President Donald Trump, who threatened to cut funding to the country over the legislation. Trump announced on Sunday that all US aid to South Africa could be suspended over a law signed by Ramaphosa last month that makes it easier for the government to expropriate land. 'South Africa is confiscating land, and treating certain classes of people VERY BADLY. It is a bad situation that the Radical Left Media doesn’t want to so much as mention,' Trump said on his Truth Social platform on Sunday. 'A massive Human Rights VIOLATION, at a minimum, is happening for all to see. The United States won’t stand for it, we will 5

act. Also, I will be cutting off all future funding to South Africa until a full investigation of this situation has been completed!' he wrote. Trump repeated these criticisms to reporters on Sunday night. 'Terrible things are happening in South Africa. The leadership is doing some terrible things, horrible things,' he said. 'They're taking away land, their confiscating land and actually they're doing things that are perhaps far worse than that,' he said. The new South African law supersedes the Expropriation Act of 1975, which required the government to pay the owners of expropriated land. The revised law says land can be taken without compensation when the government feels it is 'just and equitable and in the public interest.' " (South Africa Complains After Trump Threatens To Revoke Funding by John Hayward). Confronted with the Roman subjugation of the Celts, Germans and Anglo-Saxons, Marxists are silent. Confronted with the subjugation of the preColumbian world by Western imperialists, Marxists offer raging torrents of condemnation, although the cultural level of Europe's barbarians was on par with that of the preColumbian world. The reason for the difference lies in race. In the case of Rome's subjugation, both the subjugators and the victims were white, while in the case of the West's subjugation, the subjugators were white and the victims were nonwhite, and Marxists hate whites. In the twentieth century, the Devil took a picture of Adolf Hitler and the Ku Klux Klan. He developed a negative print and it shouted out, in place of the original, a creed of black supremacy, black domination, black hate and black violence. In the twenty first century, this reverse copy, this inverted photograph, this black version of a national socialist pornographic film, has become the defining picture of the West as it spirals into extinction.

USAID REDS DISGRACE THE NATION

It was mandated by the Foreign Assistance Act of September 4, 1961 and established by an executive order issued by President John Kennedy. With a budget of over 50 billion dollars, it is the largest goverrnment aid agency in the world and has missions in over 100 countries, from Africa to Asia to Latin America to the Middle East to Eastern Europe. It is called the United States Agency for International Development; it has over 10,000 employees; and these employees serve under its motto, From the American People. From the American People: money originally intended sixty years ago for disaster relief, poverty relief, technical cooperation, the protection of public health and socioeconomic development has been reallocated in the twenty first century. From the American People: money whose noble precursors were the Commission for Relief in Belgium, established during World War I, and the Marshall Plan, established after World War II, has been hijacked in the twenty first century by the commissars in charge of the number one mass gutter religion of our time, and flown into a swampland of political correctness. Voted into office by the people of the nation, in a terrifying illustration of just how sick the nation, once the arsenal of freedom, and the West have become, this religion known as Marxism has stolen American foreign aid money and spent it on the promotion of ideological causes dedicated to the overthrow of liberal order and the legacies of the Enlightenment. Look at the new mission of USAID and see an agency reduced to a propaganda organ and transformed into a column of subversion. The commissars in charge of USAID, betraying the original founding mission of the agency, have issued a manifesto of Marxist politics which has inspired revolutionaries throughout the world. This manifesto proclaims that a progressive aid agency is an EcoHealth Alliance whose mission is to protect people, animals and the environment from infectious diseases produced by the industrial capitalist system. A progressive aid agency subsidizes meals for the armies of Islamic terror and provides round the clock relief to Al Qaida. A progressive aid agency funds the Taliban, funds fighters for Allah, funds Islamic drug traffickers across Afghanistan, funds their fertilizers, farming equipment and irrigation canals, and funds their cultivation of poppies, heroin and human degradation. A progressive aid agency funds racism and sexism in Serbia, funds policies of discrimination against white males in Serbian offices and businesses, and funds racism and sexism as the achievement of diversity, inclusion, and a special, higher form of fairness called equity. A progressive aid agency funds feminism, black power, brown power, gay power, lesbian power and transgender power in Ireland, funds plays in which women, nonwhites, gays, lesbians and people who claim they are members of the opposite sex sing songs and dance on stage. A progressive aid agency funds the green movement in Vietnam, funds electric vehicles for the masses. A progressive aid agency funds dramatic works set to music in Columbia, in which people who claim they are members of the opposite sex sing arias celebrating the rising tide of insanity sweeping across civilization. A progressive aid agency funds comic strip drawings of people who claim they are members of the opposite sex in Peru, drawings which spread virulent propaganda under the guise of entertainment and amusement. A progressive aid agency funds gay politics, lesbian politics and transgender politics in Guatemala, and funds the psychoses of individuals who rebel against reality, a reality embedded in their DNA, and seek to change their gender. A progressive aid agency funds the tourist industry in Egypt and funds its Islamic propaganda machine: "Just one of the big moves President Donald Trump, and his administration, took on Monday was the shutdown of USAID, the government agency that for years has been handing out billions of American taxpayer dollars to other nations. The closure happened when the administration ordered the agency's headquarters closed down and told employees not to report. Its exact future isn't known at this point, but later in the day Secretary of State Marco Rubio reportedly was named acting administrator. While bureaucrats fumed and leftists claimed the action would cause incalculable injury, Trump's press office, with no fanfare, released a stunning list of the offensive projects that USAID had its hands, and American tax dollars, in. Such as the 'millions' that went to EcoHealth Alliance, the organization involved in research at the Wuhan, China, lab from which the China virus, COVID-19, likely emerged to kill millions around the globe. Then there were payments for 'hundreds of thousands' of meals for Al Qaida affiliated fighters in Syria. And the projects seemed beneficial–irrigation canals, farming equipment and fertilizers–but it was in support of an 'unprecedented poppy cultivation and heroin production in Afghanistan,' which benefited the Taliban. Then there were 'personalized' contraceptives for around the globe. 'For decades, the United States Agency for International Development has been unaccountable to taxpayers as it funnels massive sums of money to the ridiculous–and, in many cases, malicious–pet projects of entrenched bureaucrats, with next to no oversight,' the White House said. Other examples of 'waste and fraud': $1.5 million to 'advance diversity equity and inclusion in Serbia's workplaces and business communities.' $70,000 for production of a 'DEI musical' in Ireland. $2.5 million for electric vehicles for Vietnam. $47,000 for a 'transgender opera' in Colombia. $32,000 for a 'transgender comic book' in Peru. $2 million for sex changes and 'LGBT activism' in Guatemala. 'Tourism' in Egypt got $6 million." (White House Stuns With List Of Abusive USAID Expenditures, Including Help For The Taliban by Bob Unruh). The new manifesto of USAID proclaims that a progressive aid agency funds agitation activities on behalf of lesbians, gays, bisexuals and transgenders. A progressive aid agency funds propaganda campaigns for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and intersex individuals in the name of achieving development, democracy and innovation. A progressive aid agency funds movements to replace liberal individualist politics with Marxist tribal politics in the name of protecting human rights. A progressive aid agency replaces technical assistance to nations with far left, revolutionary political assistance. A progressive aid agency funds gender ideology and sexual orientation politics in nations throughout the world in the name of achieving social inclusion. A progressive aid agency funds dangerous, medically unsupported gender surgery in nations throughout the world in the name of protecting children in adversity. A progressive aid agency funds the Marxist universe of identity politics, the universe inhabited by indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities and LGBTI persons, in nations throughout the world in the name of advancing mental health, physical health and rehabilitation. A progressive aid agency funds the religion, culture and society of Marxism in nations throughout the world and funds a global movement to overthrow liberal democracy in the name of combating antiLGBTQI+ violence, stigma, discrimination and criminalization: "The Agency for International Development (USAID) is set to spend up to $969,821 to support an LGBTQI program adviser, an investigation from Breitbart News reveals. The award profile contract summary notes that the current award amount is $969,821, while the obligated amount is $358,907. The page explains that the 'current value of a contract (current award amount) represents the value of the base contract and any exercised options.' Meanwhile, it also adds that 'the Obligated Amount may lag behind the Current Award Amount.' The outlaid amount, which is the amount that has actually been paid out thus far, is noted as $26,159. The description of the grant reads, 'New LGBTQI USPSC program advisor supporting the Bureau for Development, Democracy and Innovation Inclusive Development Hub programs protecting the human rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and intersex individuals.' The grant recipient is listed as Stephen Leonelli and the grant information page notes that the grant began on August 14th, 2022, and is set to end on August 13th, 2027. According to his LinkedIn account, Leonelli currently works for the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) as an 'LGBTQI+ Program Advisor.' He also states that he has a 'Federal Acquisition Certification for Contracting/Agreement Officer's Representative Level II (FAC-COR II).' Meanwhile, USAID's Bureau for Development, Democracy, and Innovation (DDI) describes itself as the 'central resource for providing world class technical assistance to its Missions.' The website also explains that DDI's Hub for Inclusive Development (ID) 'promotes the rights and inclusion of marginalized and underrepresented populations in the development process, and leads the US Government's response to address the needs of children in adversity and youth.' The description goes on to note that 'The ID Hub provides support on integrating children in adversity, Indigenous Peoples, persons with disabilities, LGBTI persons, mental health, rehabilitation, and assistive health technologies into Agency programs.' Another page explains the role of the ID Hub reads, 'Globally, LGBTQI+ people represent an estimated 3 to 5 percent of the population, exist in every country, and are part of every religion, culture, and society,' before also saying, 'USAID helps address antiLGBTQI+ violence, stigma, discrimination and criminalization; advances the human rights of LGBTQI+ people; and ensures LGBTQI+ people are meaningfully included in USAID's broader development programming.' " (USAID To Spend Up To $969K On LGBTQI Program Adviser by Spencer Lindquist). In the twenty first century, USAID has become a dark corner in the federal government, banishing the sunlight of science and morality. Funding the Taliban, terrorists, transgenders, drug traffickers and the voices of Marxist tribal politics the world over, this rogue agency is the foreign aid flag of America's national free fall into ruin.

A TRAIN WRECK CALLED THE WEST

Milano Centrale is the main railway station of Milan and the largest railway station in Europe. Inaugurated in 1931, this terminal station offers high speed connections to cities across Italy, from Venice to Rome, and across the continent, beginning with Basel, Geneva and Zurich. Owned and operated by the Italian government, it has twenty four tracks and carries 120 million passengers per year. For the past one thousand years, a cultural train has been moving toward its terminus, and in the twenty first century, it has arrived there. This is the largest cultural train in history, spanning the globe, and its one thousand year journey has been momentous and terrifying. It is a train called Western Culture and it commenced its journey around 1000 AD, when it emerged upon the ruins of another culture, Classical Culture, which had been dead for centuries. In spirit and symbolism, it was diametrically opposed to the older culture, and its emergence in Europe brought about the extraordinary phenomenon, not witnessed anywhere else on earth, of a single continent giving rise to two separate, independent cultures, and to two cultures which could not be more different from and opposed to each other. Classical Culture was the culture of the Greeks and Romans, the culture whose prime symbols were Apollo, god of reason, science, empiricism and common sense, the god who brought Helios, the sun, across the sky every morning, together with the statue of the perfect human form. Western Culture was born among the Germanic barbarians who settled upon the dead world of Apollo, and its prime symbols were Faust, the German scholar who made a pact with the Devil at a crossroads and exchanged his reason and sanity for infinite will, power and subjectivity, and the picture of pure infinite space, without delimited, physical bodies of any kind. Two cultures, located in spiritual worlds a universe apart from each other, emerging on the same continent but in different regions, the first, Classical Culture, emerging in Southern Europe, bathed in the noonday sun and highlighting distinct Euclidean forms, and the second, Western Culture, emerging in Northern Europe, shrouded in darkness, twilight and soaring, spreading, unbounded forests. Around 1000 AD, the new Western Culture, driven by Faustian engines, which would transport it across the earth and into the deepest reaches of outer space, began moving. Its dark side, its side of unbounded subjectivism and rejection of common sense, its side contained in its insane philosophies, began heading toward the final stop, which would be reached a thousand years later, in the twenty first century. This train stopped at ominous stations on its way into total disaster. It stopped at a station called Rene Descartes, which proclaimed that the existence of one's own consciousness is the only existence of which we can be certain, and the statement I think, therefore I am is the only statement which is absolutely true. It stopped at a station called Immanuel Kant, which proclaimed "I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith," and that the world of physical objects is a universal, collective delusion because man is blind by virtue of the fact that he has a functioning visual system, and has eyes which see things. It stopped at a station called Martin Heidegger, which proclaimed that reality is Dasein or human existence, which creates the illusion of physical objects and essences. It stopped at a station called Ludwig Wittgenstein, which proclaimed that reality is that which is created by man's linguistic conventions, "language games" and "forms of life," and the sole task of philosophy is the analysis of arbitrary and subjective language. After one thousand years of travel, stopping at stations broadcasting Faustian messages rejecting the existence of external reality and rejecting the perception of physical objects, the train called Western Culture has crashed into its final stop. The wreckage clutters homes, offices, classrooms and lecture halls, and has buried civilization. The wreckage has issued a manifesto of denial, the denial of knowledge in order to make room for madness, and to read it is to read the last will and testament of student, scholar, sorcerer, master Doctor Faust. The manifesto of the West in the twenty first century proclaims that progressive philosophy is an insurrection against reason and reality. Progressive philosophy is intellectual anarchism. Progressive philosophy is strange, abnormal and a symptom of mental disease. Progressive philosophy rejects all rational norms and assumptions and is the mark of mental instability. Progressive philosophy rejects rational wisdom, guidance and leadership and is the essence of arbitrariness and unpredictability. Progressive philosophy is socialist philosophy which advocates strict obedience to the commands of a gender, race and class leviathan at the expense of personal freedom and sound judgment. Progressive philosophy is queer theory, indeterminate theory, nonbinary theory and transgender theory, which denies the facts of genes, chromosomes and the biological categories of male and female. Progressive philosophy is gay and lesbian theory which rejects heterosexual relations as a lash of capitalist power. Progressive philosophy is social war, gender war, race war and class war. Progressive philosophy is the license to think, desire and act untrammeled by the laws of logic, the good of man or the nature of reality. Progressive philosophy is indoctrination in far left political ideologies. Progressive philosophy is education in Marxist revolution. Progressive philosophy teaches that truth has no absolute character and is relative to gender, race, class, culture, society, sexual orientation and historical context. Progressive philosophy teaches that language refers to nothing in reality and texts are bottomless pits of subjective meaning which can be endlessly interpreted and deconstructed. Progressive philosophy rejects rational argumentation and establishes a regime of censorship, brute force, speech codes and political correctness in the enforcement of Marxism. Progressive philosophy rejects liberal race blind and color blind society, and advocates racism against whites and sexism against males, and justifies its racism and sexism as the achievement of diversity, inclusion and a special, higher form of fairness. A progressive society burns the robes of rational scholars, teachers and scientists, blows up liberal arts academies, throws acid on the methods of empirical inference, shreds the evidence of the senses, razes the institutions and authorities of the Enlightenment to the ground, and sweeps the ashes of civilization into the dustbin of history: "An academic paper explores the idea of a 'queerest insurrection,' 'queering leadership' and 'anarchism.' University of California Riverside grad student Josie Holland wrote the article, published in The Interdisciplinary Journal Of Leadership Studies. Holland, an English doctoral student, wrote that 'queering refers to a process of destabilizing norms and assumptions that invoke the possibility of an otherwise world and way of being and relating.' 'Queer theory is a tool to trouble categories, reject and subvert the assumed or naturalized ways of being in the world, and open up or reveal spaces of play and experimentation,' Holland wrote. 'It deconstructs conventions of politics and makes way for new forms.' The grad student states further: 'The assertion that insurrectionary processes, often used in anarchist movements, and queering are the same reveals an important aspect of queer anarchist politics: the idea that destabilizing and undermining norms is insurrectionary, with the potential to open new ways of living.' Holland quotes approvingly from an anarchist tract titled Toward The Queerest Insurrection. 'If we desire a world without restraint, we must tear this one to the ground,' the author wrote. 'We must live beyond measure and love and desire in ways most devastating. We must come to understand the feeling of social war,' the tract states. The graduate student said she is not available for interviews at this time, when reached by The College Fix for comment. The Fix asked how Holland envisions principles of queer anarchism applied in traditional leadership settings, such as education, and what role leaders in education play in promoting or challenging political ideologies. An education commentator and senior fellow at the conservative Heartland Institute criticized the theories presented in the paper. 'This movement is an outgrowth of relativism and deconstruction and may represent the undoing of it all,' S.T. Karnick told The Fix via email. The Heartland Institute is a think tank that focuses on issues in 'education, environmental protection, health care, budgets and taxes, and Stopping Socialism.' Karnick says that queer theory, however, does not work as seamlessly as the author implies. 'Queer theory proponents obviously imagine themselves to be the new authorities who will arise from the ashes of civilization, but their own success at undermining authority destroys the credibility of their own subsequent leadership,' he said. 'They will inevitably resort to force, just as the academy has done for the past several decades through political correctness, speech codes and censorship, diversity, equity, and inclusion, and other such openly authoritarian actions,' he said. Queer leadership in the education system comes with particular risks. Karnick said, 'Queer theory in leadership amounts to a contradiction in terms, which the author of the study acknowledges but cannot overcome or resolve.' 'Like relativism and deconstruction before it, queer theory undermines the authority of the scholar and teacher and will soon destroy the academy altogether if left unchecked,' he said." (Academic Journal Explores 'Queerest Insurrection' And 'Queering Leadership' by Elise Degeeter). On October 22, 1895 at 4 PM in Paris, France, the Granville-Paris Express train overran the buffer stop at the Gare Montparnasse terminus. The train was approaching the station at high speed and the driver was unable to apply the brakes. The out of control train crossed the station concourse, crashed through the station wall, and fell onto the Place de Rennes below. The sidewalk was buried in masonry and steel and a pedestrian was killed. In the twenty first century, a super speeding train fueled by the nuclear reactions of Faustian subjectivism derailed and crashed into its terminal station. With a passenger list comprised of Cartesians, Kantians and generations of their students reaching down into the present day, this train called Western culture hurtled into the dustbin of history. Everything and everybody on board was destroyed.

STATUES SMASHED BY MARXIST COMMANDERS OF THE FAITHFUL

All statues will be destroyed. Whatever means of destruction are needed to demolish the statues will be used. The work began early during the day. All of the statues are to be smashed. This also covers the idols in Bamiyan. Time: March 2001. Place: Afghanistan. These terrifying words were spoken by Taliban Information and Culture Minister Mullah Qudratullah Jamal and unleashed a campaign of cultural genocide which shocked the conscience of civilized people throughout the world. Using tanks, rocket launchers and everything at their disposal, the voices of Islam destroyed the history and heritage of 10,000 years, and in a landlocked nation at the crossroads of Central Asia and Southeast Asia, in 650,000 square kilometers of territory inhabited by 50 million people, turned back the clock to the year zero. At the other side of the planet 11,000 kilometers away, another religion has gone on a rampage smashing statues. Like Islam, it is a gutter religion appealing to the disaffected, criminal masses of society. Like Islam, it is led by a prophet and his holy book. Like Islam, it worships an almighty God as the collector of human sacrifices. Like Islam, it preaches world revolution to overthrow the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment. Born centuries after the Prophet Mohammad had visions of Allah in the desolate, diseased deserts of Arabia, born in the nineteenth century in a little dark corner of the British Museum Reading Room roiling with mental fever and the pornography of violence, this religion is known as Marxism, and its prophet Karl Marx unleashed armies of hate just like his Islamic predecessors. In place of the Quran, prophet Marx had his Communist Manifesto which he wrote himself in his delirium, and in place of Allah, this mad prophet of matter and muscular labor projected the existence of a Proletariat as a new god on earth. Marx's students and followers operate missions in every nation in the West today, religious assignments in which they peddle their tracts, stir up the sewers and foment violence. Like Islam, they have embarked on a campaign to smash statues symbolizing that which they hate and fear most of all: civilization. Wielding the sledgehammers of political correctness to enforce their creed, the Marxist Talibans operating in the West today have issued a manifesto of mass destruction which has sent the chill of fear surging through homes, schools and offices, and made decent people behold visions of an apocalypse. The Marxist apocalypse has arrived and its manifesto is the epitaph of the West. Marxist today proclaim that a progressive society smashes monuments depicting American pioneers because they symbolize the capitalist regime of white supremacy. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of gender stereotypes. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of black slavery and the Confederate states. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of racial hierarchy. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of mass murder of people of color. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime white civilization. Because they symbolize the capitalist opposition to native savagery and the capitalist ideals of reason and freedom. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of shameless racism. Because they symbolize the capitalist opposition to the tribal religions, regimentation, superstition and fear characterizing indigenous people. Because they symbolize Western ideals of human rights and human dignity triumphing over native cultures of submission and obedience. Because they symbolize the rational, scientific, liberal spirit of Western frontier development. Because they symbolize the Western march of progress and planning for a human future amidst a wilderness of Native American animals. Because they symbolize the West's rollback and eradication of five thousand year old monsters terrorizing the American West: "A University of North Dakota history professor who studies the American West believes monuments depicting the pioneers 'reinforce white supremacy.' In an interview this week with KJZZ Phoenix, Cynthia Prescott discussed her research on pioneer monuments, including a book that argues the artwork promotes 'white cultural superiority' and 'gender stereotypes.' Much like with Confederate monuments, the professor said America should reexamine artwork honoring American settlers. 'A lot of people have talked about Confederate monuments in particular, as being monuments that were put up in the late 19th, early 20th centuries for the purpose of enshrining a racial hierarchy. And through my work, I argue that Western pioneer monuments were doing very similar cultural work,' she told KJZZ. Prescott, who chairs the History and American Indian Studies Department, said the purpose of pioneer monuments was 'to reinforce white supremacy over peoples of color.' 'And they, in particular, were addressing socalled white civilization in contrast to native savagery, and seeing whites as being superior to the indigenous peoples they were displacing in the American West,' she said. A few of the statues have been taken down, but many more exist, she said. 'So for example, there was one in San Francisco that depicted a Spanish missionary towering over a seated Native man who seems to be in a very submissive position. And that image was very problematic to a number of people, and the city chose to remove that portion of that monument in 2018,' she said. In some cases, however, she said the problems with such monuments may be subtle and their purpose must be read 'carefully' in order to see the 'cultural biases coming through.' Such is the case with the 1990 statue Spirit Of The Frontier in Prescott, Arizona, she said. 'The artist's intention, as best I've been able to uncover from written records, indicates that she really intended this to be a positive depiction of both white settlers and the Yavapai people.' Prescott said. 'However, if you look closely, the pioneer mother is gazing forward, kind of preparing to move forward into the future. She and her young son, and there's a wagon wheel behind them, again, reinforcing this notion of progress and moving forward, moving westward. In contrast, the Yavapai woman is depicted gazing downward at the baby in her arms, which makes her look less engaged in the future,' the professor said. At the University of North Dakota, Prescott's primary research focus is 'gender in the American West,' according to her biography. She also is developing a Reacting to the Past role playing classroom game to prompt students to think about 'whether to preserve, relocate, or remove San Francisco's controversial Pioneer Monument, and how to reinterpret that monument,' her biography states. The pioneer monuments join a long list of things academics have labeled as racist in recent years." (Professor Says Monuments To American Pioneers 'Reinforce White Supremacy by Micaiah Bilger). Today's Marxists proclaim that a progressive society smashes statues of American pioneers because they tamed violent Indian lands where no human beings had ever gone. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of white settlements. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of racist pictures. Because they symbolize the capitalist regime of white civilization and antiIndian prejudice. Because they symbolize the capitalist opposition to the Indian culture of moral disease, internecine war and despotic clans. Because they symbolize the capitalist sons and daughters of the American Revolution for the cause of the Enlightenment. Because they symbolize parents, children, rifles and cannons who carried civilization into fierce, uncontrolled regions roamed by Native Indians, and established a New World for mankind: "There's been a lot of conversation over the past few years about monuments, specifically ones dedicated to Confederate leaders, and whether they should stay up or be taken down. But, Cynthia Prescott, a history professor at the University of North Dakota, has been looking into a different kind of monument—although in some ways, they're just as controversial. Brodie: I think for a lot of these monuments that you described, they're talking about pioneers, people who quote unquote settled this area, when in fact, in many of these places, there were already people living there. Prescott: That's right. And the people who put up these monuments in, at the turn of the 20th century were very aware of that, right? And as the US West moved from warfare to remove Native peoples toward really establishing white settlements in the West, they start trying to sort of reinforce their social stature in relation to native people through their public art. Brodie: Is it the art itself that seems problematic, like maybe the people who are depicted or the ways in which people are depicted, or maybe is it a little more subtle than that in terms of what, what folks find problematic? Prescott: In Arizona, I am not aware of any monuments that are that explicit in their racial framings. But there are monuments that, I think, do this work more subtly. In more recent monuments, I think the artist's intent was to be respectful to Indigenous people. But in some cases, you can see cultural biases coming through if you read them carefully enough. So, to give you examples of what that looks like, Arizona's first pioneer monument was put up in the 1920s by the Daughters of the American Revolution, and after some debate about the best location, they chose to place it in Springerville, Arizona. And it's one of 12 identical statues across the country that portray white women carrying civilization westward. She's carrying a baby in her arms and a rifle in her hand. She has a young boy clinging to her skirts as she marches westward carrying white civilization." (Professor Argues Pioneer Monuments Could Be Just As Controversial As Confederate Ones by Mark Brodie). In the ancient city of Bamiyan, 200 kilometers northwest of Kabul, empty niches in the gray brown cliffs scream out like eye sockets. The mountains are skulls in a land of spiritual death. The niches once sheltered giant Buddha statues which towered over the valley. In March 2001, these statues were brought down with heavy explosives detonated by the Taliban. Across the West, a new Taliban movement riding under the banners of Marxism has smashed the monuments of Western civilization's advance into savage Indian lands. The Buddha statues are condemned as unIslamic. The statues of American pioneers are condemned as unMarxist. The ruthless use of force by the totalitarian enemies of civilization continues in colors old and new and sweeps mankind into the dustbin of history.

THE TABLES AND CHAIRS OF SUBVERSION

It was founded in 1943 in Sweden by Ingvar Kamprad and is the world's largest furniture retailer. Its iconic name is an acronym, formed from the first letters of its founder's first and last names, the first letter of Elmtaryd, his family farm, and the first letter of Agunnaryd, his hometown in southern Sweden. The company is known as IKEA and it is gargantuan. It has 480 locations throughout the world, earns revenue of over 45 billion dollars per year, sells over 12,000 different kinds of products, records over five billion visitors per year to its website, and is known for the high quality of its furniture designs, interior designs, decorated room settings, and ready to assemble products. In the twenty first century, IKEA has become known for something else, something dark, which has given it worldwide notoriety among decent, civilized people. In the twenty first century, this legendary multinational corporation has fallen under new ownership. The new owners are members of a global movement of the malcontented and the disaffected and control every nation in the West, and are dedicated to the overthrow of liberal democracy. The new owners are members of a mass religion in charge of governments, emanating from the gutters of society. The new owners march under the flags of a new congregation enforcing the doctrines of the faith in every home, school, office and field of activity. This congregation, this doctrine, this faith is known as Marxism, and it has captured a global furniture and household goods retailer known as IKEA and transformed it into an agitation and propaganda machine. In the twenty first century, the principles of IKEA are the principles of gender, race and class politics together with its comrade in arms in the fight against the West. Its comrade in arms is Islam, and a twenty first century Marxist-Islamist axis of subversion has become a synonym and byword for the Western establishment. The new twenty first century IKEA has issued a manifesto which has declared war on the liberal, capitalist, Enlightenment values on which it was founded over eighty years ago. Listen to a business corporation's manifesto of Marxism and hear just how sick the West has become in the twenty first century, so sick that ostensibly capitalist enterprises have become loudspeakers for Marxist lawlessness. The new IKEA proclaims that a progressive corporation is run by communists calling themselves social entrepreneurs. A progressive corporation is a communist enterprise calling itself a social enterprise. A progressive corporation advocates communism in the name of eliminating poverty and inequality. A progressive corporation advocates communism in the name of improving the plight of vulnerable people and communities. A progressive corporation advocates racism against whites, sexism against males, and discrimination in favor of gays, lesbians and transgenders in the name of achieving inclusion and helping marginalized communities. A progressive corporation advocates communism in the name of providing jobs, incomes and education to all. A progressive corporation advocates communism in the name of providing equal status, rights and opportunities to all. A progressive corporation advocates communism in the name of enabling people to earn a decent living, lead a dignified life, provide for themselves and their families in ways which do not pollute the planet, and scale the heights of the highest form of freedom which is total enslavement to the state and society: "IKEA has long since had the vision to create a better everyday life for as many people as possible. Back in 2012, we looked at how to achieve this by including products and services from social entrepreneurs in our offer. These first collaborations resulted in over 100 jobs created. Today, these business partnerships contribute to over 20,000 jobs and incomes. Building on the success, we've looked to support programs that accelerate the movement of social entrepreneurship in general. Supporting social enterprises with a vision to create a more inclusive and equal society we hope to have a positive impact on people's livelihoods. At the same time, we are continuing to look for new and innovative partnerships that will offer IKEA customers unique handmade collections and services. Today, we back and boost social entrepreneurs all over the world, as well as expanding the business we do together. That way, we get to be a part of creating new opportunities for vulnerable people and communities–while fighting the root causes of poverty and inequality. By focusing on inclusion, equality and livelihood we enable a better everyday life for people who struggle to provide for themselves and their families. To achieve this, every project we engage in should address and positively affect one or all of these three areas. Inclusion. Supporting social entrepreneurs who strive to improve the terms on which individuals and groups take part in society. This involves providing jobs, incomes, capabilities and tools to those who are vulnerable and marginalized irrespective of their individual or group characteristics. Equality. Working with social entrepreneurs who look to make society more equal in terms of income, status, rights and opportunity. This involves supporting individuals or groups, but also changing systems, with a view to allow people to earn a decent and sustainable living. Livelihood. Ultimately aiming to lift people out of poverty by having the opportunity to earn a decent living. With increased inclusion and equality comes a better chance of a dignified life, where people have the possibility to provide for themselves and their families in a sustainable way." (Ikea Social Entrepreneurs, website). The new IKEA proclaims that a progressive design corporation creates communist communal spaces in the people's apartment buildings. A progressive design corporation creates communist storage rooms and multifunctional spaces for neighborhoods, nations and the people of the planet to inhabit. A progressive design corporation creates communist spaces for the people's tools, tables, parties and gatherings. A progressive design corporation creates communist homes in warm communist tones and living communist colors which bring the proletariat of the world together in a revolution to overthrow human freedom: "Bim Eriksson is a Swedish graphic novelist, artist and illustrator. Her work has appeared in numerous Swedish periodicals and daily publications, and exhibited in galleries and museums across Europe. Inspired by communal spaces in Swedish apartment buildings, Bim has transformed the idea of a dull, shared storage room into a vibrant and inspiring multifunctional space for all neighbors to use. Here, you'll find space for tools, extra furniture and foldable tables that tenants can borrow for parties and gatherings. Designed in an organic style featuring rounded profiles, dusty warm hues, light woods and bursts of green, Bim's room becomes an extension of the home that relieves the pressures on your own apartment. A shared space that brings everyone together, regardless of what activities you like to do." (A Room For Community: What's Mine Is Yours, website). Today's IKEA proclaims that a progressive society is run by Muslim women wearing hijabs. A progressive society is grounded in Islam and is not a free society. A progressive society enforces Islamic law in the name of fighting racism. A progressive society is a sharia tyranny which has eradicated Western liberal values. A progressive society rejects as unIslamic Western freedom of speech and the rights of the individual. A progressive society seeks to appease and pacify the armies of Islamic bigotry and intolerance. A progressive society rejects the rule of reason and secularism and is clothed in the garments of Islamic punishment, hellfire and subordination of the individual: "Alas, IKEA hasn't always been an estimable cultural player. In 2007, Aftenposten reported on the case of an Iranian refugee named Ibrahim Batmani who had worked at an IKEA in Norway for ten years. One day at lunch, he met a new colleague, a Muslim woman in hijab. When he put out his hand, she refused to shake it, saying that she was refusing on religious grounds. In reply, Batmani explained to her that Norway was a free country and that she therefore didn't need to wear hijab; he also criticized Islam at some length. The result: he was officially upbraided by his superiors for having behaved in a racist fashion in his encounter with the woman. Some time went by. One day Batmani brought up with his boss the subject of hijabs, which female IKEA employees were allowed to wear on the job. He disapproved of this policy, he said. Once again, he was accused of racism. This time he was fired. Of course, the whole thing was ridiculous. Batmani himself was Iranian. And his statements about hijab and about Islam had nothing to do with race. When he took the case to court, IKEA was forced to acknowledge that nothing Batmani had said was racist. The judgment was in his favor, and he got his job back. But IKEA appealed the case. Throughout the case, IKEA's conduct was reprehensible. Instead of being impressed by a hard working long term employee who had fled from a tyrannical Islamic regime and who stood up for Western liberal values and against the Islamic tyranny that hijab represents, IKEA, in effect, sided with tyranny. In order to pacify devout Muslims, it appeased a woman wearing a garment that symbolizes subordination and punished a man for believing in freedom of speech and the rights of the individual." (Islamizing IKEA by Bruce Bauer). In the twenty first century, IKEA has achieved a special form of corporate integration and sells a special form of merchandise to the public. It is not the IKEA of old founded by seventeen year old Ingvar Kamprad in 1943. The new IKEA is a corporate arm of a global Marxist-Islamist axis. It handles the branding, design, manufacture and supply of antiEnlightenment tub thumping, rabble rousing, indoctrination and misinformation. It sells ready to assemble rifles of revolution to the haters of mankind, whose fearsome symbols are the Marxist Red Star and the Islamic Crescent Moon. It is a global corporate franchise, endlessly expanding, whose franchisees are given the procedures, the know how and the license to spread terror and destruction.

SOUTH AFRICA'S WAR AGAINST THE WEST

The year 1933 was a fateful year for Germany. On the thirtieth day of the month. German President Paul von Hindenburg appointed Adolf Hitler as the nation's new chancellor. In March, the Reichstag passed the Enabling Act, which gave Hitler the power to annul individual rights guaranteed under the Weimar Constitution and make laws without parliamentary approval. In April, Hitler ordered the construction of the first concentration camp, at Dachau, for opponents of his regime. In August, the rise to power of national socialism was completed when, after Hindenburg's death, Hitler merged the chancellery with the presidency and was greeted by wild cheers from the people over his new title: Der Fuhrer. By the end of the year, Germany had left the Western community of liberal, capitalist, Enlightenment states and plunged, by peaceful, democratic vote, into the dark waters of race politics and socialist slavery. Less than a century after Hitler's brownshirts defeated the rival redshirts, after the national socialist Sturmabteilung defeated the international socialist Rotfrontkampferbund, after a race based totalitarian movement defeated a class based totalitarian movement for the control of the streets and control of the nation, the national socialists are back in business in a land 9,000 kilometers away from Berlin. The names, flags and colors have changed, but the theme of hate remains the same, and it marks a movement which has taken South Africa, as it had taken Germany, out of the West. South Africa today, thirty years after the fall of apartheid which had institutionalized racism and denied nonwhites equal rights with whites, has become a new national socialist regime, establishing black supremacy and hatred of free, Western style Israel as official government policies. A movement of black ideologues, black hoodlums, black streetfighters and black stormtroopers has become the new cultural and political establishment and brought a black version of the Third Reich into power. Today's South Africa, rejecting the old apartheid regime but rejecting as well Western liberal Enlightenment ideals, has followed Western nations today in their terminal stage of decline, and descended into a Marxist, Hitlerite jungle of gender, race and class politics which has composed the epitaph of the West. Look at South Africa today and see a manifesto of antiEnlightenment philosophy which has banished civilization from the nation. It proclaims that a progressive South Africa has the power to seize Afrikaners' property without paying just compensation. A progressive South Africa denies Afrikaners equal opportunity in employment, education and business. A progressive South Africa sanctions hate filled language and violence against Afrikaners. A progressive South Africa reduces whites to a racially disfavored group and deprives them of fundamental rights and freedoms. A progressive South Africa condemns Israel as a genocidal nation because it seeks to eradicate the Hamas armies of intolerance and intimidation. A progressive South Africa is a court of injustice which advocates the destruction of Israel because it is a liberal, capitalist democracy. A progressive South Africa supports Iran's development of nuclear weapons to launch against Israel. A progressive South Africa is an unjust and immoral regime, dedicated to the destruction of the only free nation in the Middle East, Israel, and to a policy of human rights violations against its minority white population, reducing its members to refugees fleeing from terrifying, Nuremberg style discrimination laws and property confiscation: "In shocking disregard of its citizens' rights, the Republic of South Africa (South Africa) recently enacted Expropriation Act 13 of 2024 (Act), to enable the government of South Africa to seize ethnic minority Afrikaners' agricultural property without compensation. This Act follows countless government policies designed to dismantle equal opportunity in employment, education, and business, and hateful rhetoric and government actions fueling disproportionate violence against racially disfavored landowners. In addition, South Africa has taken aggressive positions towards the United States and its allies, including accusing Israel, not Hamas, of genocide in the International Court of Justice, and reinvigorating its relations with Iran to develop commercial, military, and nuclear arrangements. The United States cannot support the government of South Africa's commission of rights violations in its country or its 'undermining United States foreign policy, which poses national security threats to our Nation, our allies, our African partners, and our interests. It is the policy of the United States that, as long as South Africa continues these unjust and immoral practices that harm our Nation: (a) the United States shall not provide aid or assistance to South Africa; and (b) the United States shall promote the resettlement of Afrikaner refugees escaping government sponsored race based discrimination, including racially discriminatory property confiscation." (Addressing Egregious Actions Of The Republic Of South Africa, Executive Order issued by President Donald Trump, February 7,2025). The Marxist regime succeeding white rule proclaims that a progressive South Africa allows land expropriation without compensation. A progressive South Africa emulates Zimbabwe and allows the government to seize all land owned by whites. A progressive South Africa deprives whites of their land in the name of correcting Western colonialism. A progressive South Africa deprives whites of their land in the name of fighting the legacies of apartheid. A progressive South Africa expropriates the white minority in the name of social justice. A progressive South Africa steals white farmland, gives it to black vermin, and plunges the nation into poverty and starvation. A progressive South Africa has the right to seize white farmland whether or not the farmers want to sell the land and whether or not the government pays a fair price for the land. A progressive South Africa is a black nationalist state which reduces whites to chattel slaves. A progressive South Africa is race communist state which allows the black proletariat to expropriate and exterminate whites. A progressive South Africa is a run by a national unity government uniting every black Marxist living in every sewer and rathole in the land. A progressive South Africa is an expropriation society which has targeted white South Africans for deprivation and dispossession. A progressive South Africa is ruled by a race Marxist party which has unleashed a black crime wave against whites. A progressive South Africa sanctions political violence and the mass murder of white farmers. A progressive South Africa is an antiliberal, antiWestern satellite state of China and Russia. A progressive South Africa supports Palestinian terror and Islamic theocracies in their campaign to complete Hitler's holocaust: "President Donald Trump announced Sunday that he is suspending all US aid to South Africa after the latter passed a law on land expropriation, which many fear could lead to Zimbabwe style seizures of land owned by white citizens. The president made the surprise announcement on Truth Social, his own social media platform, on Sunday evening. South Africa received $273 million from the US in 2023, according to ForeignAssistance.gov. (Reuters puts the sum at $440 million.) That includes funding for the President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR). South Africa also has key trade deals with the US. The issue of expropriation has been simmering for decades in South Africa, given the unequal distribution of land, most of which is owned by the white minority as a result of colonialism and apartheid. But until now, South Africa has been reluctant to follow the example of Zimbabwe, which seized land from white farmers in 2000 and plunged the country into starvation, as few black farmers were successful and many farms were stolen by the ruling party. South Africa, like the United States, already allows the government to seize land under an authority similar to eminent domain, though the preference is for a 'willing buyer, willing seller' transaction at fair market prices. However, radical black nationalist and communist politicians continue to demand that the government seize the property of white farmers. Though few black South Africans want to farm, the issue remains an emotive one. However, radical black nationalist and communist politicians continue to demand that the government seize the property of white farmers. Though few black South Africans want to farm, the issue remains an emotive one. The new Expropriation Act allows the government to take private land for a 'public purpose,' and also allows it to do so without paying any compensation. Opposition parties have pushed back against the bill. Notably, the opposition, which serves in a national unity government, controls the agriculture ministry, which would be responsible for applying the new expropriation law to farmland. That means implementation is unlikely anytime soon—but it could also mean that South Africa’s governing coalition could shatter over the issue—especially given Trump’s pressure. Many white South Africans also believe that the high level of rural crime, including the murders of white farmers, is politically motivated. Trump spoke out against the phenomenon in 2018, and highlighted the expropriation issue. In addition, South Africa also acts contrary to U.S. interests and alliances on the world stage, notably by cozying up to rival powers such as China and Russia, and also by backing Palestinian terror against Israel in international forums." (Trump Cuts Off Funding To South Africa Over Racial Land Confiscation by Joel Pollak). Whoever wears this sign, is an enemy of our people. Thus shouted the July 1, 1942 edition of the national socialist wall newspaper Parole Der Woche, a propaganda sheet plastered in public places across Germany. This sign was the Yellow Star with the word Jude printed in the center. The successors of the national socialists operating in South Africa in the twenty first century have launched another race war. The Marxists in charge of the nation have transformed it into an expropriation and extermination machines rolling against whites.

A THEFT IN ARIZONA

It is a major hub of the Sun Belt and is known for its merciless desert climate and blazing hot summers. Its Grand Canyon National Park is one of the seven wonders of the natural world. Its nickname, the Grand Canyon State, is arched over by its shining motto: Ditat Deus, "God Enriches." It is the forty eighth state of the Union and it is called Arizona. In the twenty first century, the noonday light of this state, its breathtakingly blue skies and summers and gleaming geographical forms, has become shrouded in darkness and disappeared. There is a permanent solar eclipse across Arizona, brought about by Democrat Party wrongdoing which has made the state's public officials the disgrace of the nation. In the twenty first century, the state visited by President Theodore Roosevelt on a regular basis to enjoy its sundrenched scenery has been flooded over by black rivers of election fraud which have carried away the victory of Kari Lake in the 2024 United States Senate election and installed Democrat Ruben Gallego into office. In the twenty first century, election honesty has been banished from Arizona by the mobs in control of a once conservative, libertarian state whose most famous voice was Barry Goldwater, and been replaced by a regime of election rigging to maintain the Democrat Party establishment in power indefinitely. The 2024 United States Senate election was stolen by violations of the ballot chain of custody laws. It was stolen by the refusal to allow Republican Party observers at polling stations. It was stolen by ballot couriers serving as Democrat Party operatives. It was stolen by unsecured ballot boxes. It was stolen by ineligible voters allowed to vote. It was stolen by broken seals on ballot boxes. It was stolen by blank lines on chain of custody forms. It was stolen by mail in ballot boxes left unattended for days. It was stolen by mail in ballot boxes containing ballots without names or signatures. It was stolen by mail in ballot boxes with no numbers or seals, or with broken seals, or no couriers, or no bipartian couriers. It was stolen by malfunctioning surveillance cameras in ballot vaults. It was stolen by false ballot courier sheets containing false signatures and false times of delivery. It was stolen by the movement of ballot boxes to distant locations. It was stolen by couriers who failed to count or verify the number of ballots before taking them into custody. It was stolen by ballot boxes which were not opened at polling stations in front of witnesses as required by law. It was stolen by ballot boxes whose contents were not recorded at polling stations prior to their transference to couriers. It was stolen by Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act ballots for which there was no date or time when received and no explanation of the locations utilized to handle them. It was stolen by boxes containing these Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act ballots which had no no box number, no seals, no pick up time, no received time and no opened time. It was stolen by the absence of official marshals, inspectors or judges at polling stations. It was stolen by county recorders who promote transgenderism on social media platforms and condemn capitalism as a regime of white supremacy. It was stolen by the prevention of election observers from witnessing signature verifications, being kept two meters away from the process. It was stolen by the use of artificial intelligence software to verify signatures, despite the software's 81 percent failure rate. It was stolen by the discrepancies between the number of ballots received by the county recorder and the number delivered to ballot processing centers, the differences of 600, 5000, and 2000 being the result of theft. It was stolen by understaffed polling stations. It was stolen by unsafe and unsecure internet connections. It was stolen by the lack of spaces on ballot sheets recording ballot pickups and ballot arrival dates and times. It was stolen by fabricated vote counts. It was stolen by the lack of ballot box and seal numbers. It was stolen by the lack of signature verifications of voters. It was stolen by the lack information on the identity of ballot box receivers and on the times ballot boxes were opened. It was stolen during implausibly long delivery times for ballot boxes. It was stolen by missing couriers' initials. It was stolen by couriers falsely registered as independents but in fact serving as Democrat Party operatives, in violation of the law requiring bipartisan supervision of elections. It was stolen by Democrat Party operatives disguised as independent couriers judging, handling, counting and collecting ballot boxes. It was stolen by people identifying themselves as the Party Not Designated but in fact serving as agents of a Democrat Party movement to reduce America to a banana republic, burying election integrity, canceling lawful voting procedures, skewing ballot processing, and raising a single crop called theft of democracy: "Concerns are increasing that Kari Lake's loss to Ruben Gallego in the Arizona US Senate race in November was due to malfeasance. The CONELRAD Group, a team of mostly former intelligence and military officers located primarily in southern Arizona that investigates illegal election activity, along with the Pima Integrity Project, or PIP, have issued a new report on alleged improprieties in Pima County's elections last year. The groups found 10 areas of concern, including some where laws or rules were allegedly violated involving 'possible malfeasance,' and called on the Arizona Legislature and the Trump administration to investigate. The 54 page report, compiled by CONELRAD founder Jack Dona and a couple of team members including Tim Laux of PIP, found what they are calling multiple violations of the chain of custody (COC) of ballots, which is a class 2 misdemeanor, noncompliance with the state's Election Procedures Manual (EPM), also a class 2 misdemeanor, refusing to allow political party observers at early voting locations, providing mostly left leaning ballot couriers, courier time records that were impossible, unsecured ballot boxes, and ineligible voters on the voter rolls. Dona suggested to this writer how the wrongdoing could have happened. 'All of the information lawfully obtained in this report begs the question: Is this nothing more than a series of possible mistakes, errors, incompetence, malfeasance or is it something else entirely?' he asked. 'One could imagine if the fictional character Sgt Joe Friday of the TV Show Dragnet were assigned to this case, his discussion with his partner, Detective Bill Gannon, might go something like this: Bill, let's see if we can piece this all together. First they make a copy of the voter database. They use that copy of the database to adjust addresses. Then let's say they send a dump for printing. The database copy then gets tossed and disappeared.' He went on, 'Then when the election happens, those adjusted addresses go to different places, ballots filled out and dropped somewhere? Isn't it a fact that between the November election and the January data dump, thousands of records are removed? They don't go inactive first as ARS (Arizona Revised Statutes) states, do they? Don't they just go away? Has anyone ever seen those ballots' histories because as I understand it the voter record is gone? Doesn't this answer the question as to why a voter swears they didn't vote in spite of the records showing they actually did?' For their investigation, the teams reviewed chain of custody documents from Pima County's 2024 primary and general elections, and digital data provided to the Republican Party by the Pima County Recorder. They included screenshots of the problematic findings in their report. It was stolen by expunging official voter data bases and fabricating new voters. The teams found that ineligible voters cast ballots, since they had registered to vote after the cutoff date. Their research went back to the 2016 election and found over 500 of these voters. The group also found that the chain of custody forms used by Pima County did not follow the template recommended by the Election Assistance Commission (EAC). 'It appears that every ballot transfer sheet that we reviewed had only one courier, a severe violation of the Arizona Revised Statutes and the EPM. This constitutes a break in the chain of custody,' the report said. Some of the chain of custody forms contained blank lines to fill in important information, but nothing was marked down. The forms lacked blank lines for filling in the pickup date and time, were seals intact? what are the vote counts? and when did the couriers with their ballot boxes arrive at the BPC (Ballot Processing Center).' After the groups had previously expressed their concerns to Pima County about its chain of custody form not requiring adequate information, the county changed some of the forms. However, 'the new chain of custody form did not bring about any better or more trustworthy results. In fact, the recorder and staff made things worse by leaving off a space for ballot box and seal numbers. Instead of 2 party printed names below the line of legible signatures, the form now has tiny spaces for initials only.' Some of the chain of custody forms lacked information such as the name of the person who signed to receive the ballot boxes and the time the box was opened. Instead of names, only initials were jotted down. The report added up instances of each involving the mail in ballot drop offs during the primary election. There were seven boxes of ballots lacking seals, 35 missing a delivery date or time, 39 missing a pickup date, 52 instances that took over four hours to deliver the ballot boxes, 35 missing the couriers' initials, and six instances of blanks not filled in. The couriers were frequently registered as independents, also known as Party Not Designated, or PND, and some had changed their party from Democrat shortly before the election." (Did Kari Lake really Lose In November? by Rachel Alexander). On the Great Seal of Arizona is a celebration of the traditional five Cs of the state's economy, vital from the time of territorial status through to statehood through to the present day. Copper is represented by the image of the miner, cattle by the cow, cotton by the field, citrus by the orchard and climate by the sun. In the twenty first century, a sixth C has appeared and formed a dark cloud over the economy, politics and ethos of the state. It signifies the theft of the 2024 United States Senate election by the Democrat Party. The C stands for corruption.

MODERN PHYSICS VERSUS REALITY

It all began with Aristotle. An ancient Greek philosopher who lived in the fourth century BC, Aristotle was the founder of science. The crowning glory of the mind of man, science is the discipline which builds knowledge on the basis of experience and seeks to explain natural phenomena by reference to causality. The method of science is the method of induction, the method of inferring general laws from the evidence of the senses, and it uses deduction as an ancillary method to infer consequences from prior known empirical laws. To say that science proceeds on the basis of experience, and rejects the method of pure deduction, pure mental inspection and the like, is to say that science proceeds on the basis of common sense, the judgment of ordinary, intelligent, sane people who look at reality. Reality. Common sense, the universal judgment of all people in possession of a sound mind, reveals fundamental truths about the universe. It reveals that nothing is nothing and there exists no nothing, only something. It reveals that the notion of an expansion of space is a contradiction in terms, because there is no absolute space or absolute nothing. It reveals that reality is three dimensional and Euclidean in character, because the notion of a nonEuclidean universe is the notion of a curvature of the universe into a fourth physical dimension, which is absurd because length, width and breadth exhaust all possible dimensions. It reveals that the universe is everything, and there is nothing outside of everything, and the universe is thus static, eternal and uncreated, and to speak of an expansion, evolution or end of the universe is to use words without meaning. It reveals that there is nothing "outside," "before," or "after" existence except more existence. It reveals that the notion of process, field or force presupposes the existence of objects which are in process or create a field or force, and that processes, fields and forces cannot existence apart from objects any more than walking can exist apart from legs which walk. It reveals that outside the mind, in the world of nature, everything is particles or objects, and that processes, fields or forces as such do not exist. It reveals that objects move and act in accordance with their natures or with the kinds of things they are, and nothing in nature can occur by chance. It reveals that such facts as that paper burns when placed into contact with fire, and that two apples plus two apples equal four apples, and that water boils when placed into contact with sufficient heat and does not freeze, are not matters of sheer chance but are produced by causality and could not be otherwise. Listen to Aristotle affirm that all laws of reality are derived from experience and there can be no thinking in the absence of experience: "The soul never thinks without an image." "That which can think thinks the forms in images." "Unless one perceived one would not learn or understand anything, and when one contemplates one must simultaneously contemplate an image," (On The Soul). Listen to Aristotle affirm that an absolute void cannot exist and everywhere there is something, and that in an absolute void, objects would move indefinitely without a cause of their movement: "If there were a void, no one could say why a thing once set in motion should stop anywhere; for why should it stop here rather than there? So that a thing will either be at rest or move indefinitely with a cause, unless something more powerful gets in its way." (Physics, 215a19-20). Listen to Aristotle affirm that the universe is necessarily eternal and uncreated because there is nothing "before" or "after" any given moment in time except more moments in time. For any moment T, there is a always moment before and always a moment after T: "How can there be any before or after without the existence of time? Or how can there be any time without the existence of change? If then time is the measure of change or is itself a kind of change, it follows that, if there is always time, change must also be eternal. But so far as time is concerned we see that all with one exception are in agreement in saying that it is uncreated. In fact, it is just this that enables Democritus to show that all things cannot have had a becoming, for time, he says, is uncreated. Plato alone asserts the creation of time, saying that it had a becoming together with the universe, the universe according to him having had a becoming. Now since time cannot exist and is unthinkable apart from the moment, and the moment is a kind of middle point, uniting as it does both a beginning and an end, a beginning of future time and an end of past time, it follows that there must always be time, for the extremity of the last period of time that we take must be found in some moment, since time contains no point of contact for us except the moment. Therefore, since the moment is both a beginning and an end, there must always be time on both sides of it. But if this is true of time, it is evident that it must also be true of change, time being a kind of property of change." (Physics, Book VIII, Part I). Modern Physics. In the early years of the twentieth century, two German physicists, Albert Einstein and Max Planck, developed the edifice of modern physics, whose mathematical predictions have been as powerful as their pictures of reality have contradicted the tenets of common sense. The theories possess maximum predictive power and have advanced the course of technology and industry, as their explanatory powers hover at zero and their ontologies represent an assault on reality. Einstein's creation is called relativity theory and it proclaims that there exist no states of absolute motion or rest, only relative states, that what is called the force of gravitation is in fact not a force at all but a curvature of space and a region of nonEuclidean geometry, that outside the mind, everything is field and geometry and there exist no separate particles or objects, and that socalled mass is only a form of energy. Look at relativity theory and see the proclamation that physical objects do not exist. Matter is a form of space and objects are merely curved regions of space. Three dimensional space can be curved into a fourth dimension, but we can never perceive this because we are blind when we see, and we are blind because we have eyes. The socalled force of gravitation is nothing more than a curvature of Euclidean geometry imparted by objects. There are no such things as physical points, atoms, particles or impenetrabilities but only bumps, wrinkles, waves and singularities in the geometry of space: "On one interpretation of general relativity theory, which was sometimes held as an ideal by Einstein, and later developed in its extreme form by John Wheeler in his geometrodynamics, considers material objects to be simply bumps in the curvature of spacetime. A precursor of this view was the space theory of matter of the late nineteenth century mathematician W K Clifford, in which physical objects are merely curved regions of space. Just as a two dimensional surface such as a sheet of paper or rubber can be either flat or curved, so geometers speak of a three dimensional or four dimensional space being flat or curved, even though we cannot directly perceive the curvature of such a higher dimensional space. Also just as a two dimensional sheet such a wrinkled sheet of paper or a bumpy sheet of rubber can be more sharply curved in some areas than in others, so too four dimensional geometry can have a variable curvature. This curvature can be said to be caused by gravity, or more accurately the curvature is the gravitational field. In the ordinary construal of general relativity theory, physical objects impart a curvature to the surrounding space, proportionate to their mass. On the geometrodynamical interpretation of general relativity theory the objects themselves are the curvature.

Point atoms or impenetrable particles are not objects in spacetime, but rather particular pointy bumps or singularities in spacetime. On this view, an object does not move in space, rather space is moving up in a certain direction." (Spinoza And Einstein: Monism In Early Modern Philosophy And In Contemporary Field Theory by Val Dusek). Look at quantum theory and see the proclamation that the behavior of physical particles is arbitrary and capricious. No matter how powerful our computing powers are, nothing in nature can be predicted or known with certainty. The processes of nature are fundamentally indeterminate and it is possible for objects to move up and not down in a gravitational field, for wood to conduct currents of electricity, and for iron not to conduct currents of electricity. The actions of objects have no relation to what the objects are and their actions cannot be predicted. There exist no natures or essences of objects which dictate the outcome of experiments but any outcome is possible and anything can happen at any moment. We can never know with absolute assurance what the future will bring and whether the sun will rise tomorrow. The only laws of nature are laws of statistics and probability, and the only thing we can know with certainty is the fact that nothing whatever can be known with certainty: "According to quantum physics, no matter how much information we obtain or how powerful our computing abilities, the outcomes of physical processes cannot be predicted with certainty because they are not determined with certainty. Instead, given the initial state of a system, nature determines its future state through a process that is fundamentally uncertain. In other words, nature does not dictate the outcome of any process or experiment, even in the simplest of situations. Rather, it allows a number of different eventualities, each with a certain likelihood of being realized. Quantum physics might seem to undermine the idea that nature is governed by laws, but that is not the case. Instead it leads us to accept a new form of determinism: Given the state of a system at some time, the laws of nature determine the probabilities of various futures and pasts rather than determining the future and past with certainty. (The Grand Design by Stephen Hawking and Leonard Mlodinow). What common sense has known for thousands of years is what physics laboratories throughout the world corroborate every day. The universe is constituted of physical objects in space and time, objects which are as they are and do not act in accordance with chance but act in accordance with the kinds of objects they are. Look at the discoveries made by the honest observationalists of today and see common sense emerge triumphant. The discovery of the Higgs particle in 2012 at the European Center for Nuclear Research established the existence of a cosmic ether against which absolute states of motion and rest could be defined. The discovery that absolute vacuums do not exist and socalled vacuums are "by no means simple empty spaces" but are oceans of photons and other particles. The discovery of dark energy, a force of repulsion operating between galaxies, from observations of the accelerating redshifts of distant stars, which can replace the contradictory notion of the expansion of the universe. The discovery was made in 1998 by the Supernova Cosmology Project and the High Z Supernova Search Team. The wisdom of the ages, exemplified by the philosophy of Aristotle, and the latest discoveries made by state of the art laboratories, form a voice of opposition to the march of insanity of the theories of modern physics.

GERMANY'S CAR INDUSTRY STALLS

It was called the Wirschaftwunder, the "economic miracle," and Europe had never seen anything like it before. It was the lightning speed reconstruction and development of West Germany after World War II, reestablishing the nation as the economic powerhouse of the continent. The reason was the adoption of capitalism and the rejection of far left ideologies. Venerated as the "father of the West German economic miracle," Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard led the astounding recovery. He replaced the Reichsmark with the Deutsche Mark to rein in skyrocketing inflation, making basic goods cheap and affordable. He reduced income taxes, from ninety percent to under twenty percent, incentivizing work. He abolished price controls, lowering demand, increasing supply, and incentivizing producers to increase production. His policies filled the land with prosperity and abundance: "Today the German working man leads a comfortable life and wears a well filled waistcoat. He eats well, and his food–although German cooking lacks the elegance of French–is wholesome and appetizing. He buys good clothes, and he dresses his wife and children well. He generally has money to spare for television sets, weekend excursions and football matches. And he is not afraid of celebrating occasionally on a grander scale." (Life World Library: Germany by Terrence Prittie). Seventy five years after capitalist reforms placed food and freedom on the German table, Germany has returned to its statist past and its car industry has ground to a halt. Germany was the natural headquarters of the global car industry. It is the home of the modern car, invented in 1886 by Karl Benz, who invented the gasoline powered engine and manufactured copies of his new car. German designed cars have won the European Car of the Year, the World Car of the Year and the International Car of the Year awards more times than cars from any other nations. Car experts throughout the world have selected two German cars, the Volkswagen Beetle and the Porsche 911, to be on their list of the Cars of the Century, awards given for the most influential cars of the twentieth century. In the new millennium, Germany's legendary car industry, for decades the envy of the world, has been dismantled by the machine tools of Marxist revolution and reduced to a dead shadow of its former self. As Germany fell in the grip of national socialism under Hitler, so in the twenty first century, the nation, reverting to type, has fallen yet again in the grip of socialism, and in the grip of the brownshirts' brother far left ideology, and the new Marxist establishment has declared war on modern capitalism and industrial progress. In the twenty first century, the German car industry is an abandoned city and a shuttered factory. It is a synonym for Wolfsburg, Volkswagen and the vacuum spaces of economic decline. It is the antithesis of a miracle and is damnation visited upon socialist and green activists. It produces at half capacity and is an object of national shame. It is not capable of contributing to the nation's manufacturing output in a satisfactory manner. It is not capable of contributing to the total value of the nation's goods and services in a satisfactory manner. Its sales, revenues and profits have plunged to record low levels. It is the victim of a green agenda controlling the government, an agenda which has phased out gasoline and diesel powered engines. It is the victim of government mandated, multibillion dollar development costs for electric cars which have not been recouped in car sales. It is the victim of the highest labor costs in the car industry throughout the world, costs which are double those elsewhere in Europe. It is the victim of pay and benefits packages given to workers which do not match workers' productivity. It is the victim of national nuclearphobia which has prevented the use of nuclear energy to power its modern civilization, and sent energy costs soaring into the stratosphere, five times higher than in America or China. It is the victim of Marxist labor laws which have prevented it from taking necessary actions to reduce labor costs. It is the victim of unions which refuse to agree to reasonable limits on pay and bonuses. It is the victim of unions and politicians which refuse to agree to closures of unprofitable factories. It is a victim of unions which refuse to change life time job security contracts. It is the victim of unions and politicians which refuse to make it more competitive in the global economy. It refuses to compete on price and quality with Chinese cars. It refuses to lower its operating costs to compete with Chinese carmakers. It refuses to compete with China in areas where the West had reigned supreme. It refuses to match Chinese advances in digitization and battery technology, advances built upon by initial Chinese theft of Western technology. It refuses to lower costs, raise production, increase efficiency, deepen science, extend research, turbocharge technology and do all the things which made the West the leader of the world and produced the earth shaking Scientific and Industrial Revolutions during the Age of Enlightenment. It worships China as the new sun of science, technology and industrial production and has set into motion a plan to move into the new solar system and depart from the West: "Wolfsburg is Germany's answer to midtwentieth century Detroit--not so much a city with a car factory as a factory with a city that has grown up around it. Some 60,000 people from across the region work in the plant, while the town itself has a population of around 125,000. Locals say that even if you don't work in the factory yourself, it's certain many of your friends will, along with half of your class from school. 'Wolfsburg and Volkswagen--it's kind of a synonym,' explains Dieter Landenberger, the VW Group's in house historian, as he looks lovingly at an early model Beetle. It is one of an array of beautifully restored classic cars in the Zeithaus–a huge, glass fronted museum in the Autostadt dedicated to icons of the motor industry. 'We're proud of the plant,' he says. 'It is a symbol of that period in the 1950s when Germany had to reinvent itself and rebuild after the war. It was a kind of motor for the German economic miracle.' Today, however, the plant has also come to symbolize some of the main problems affecting the German car industry as a whole. The Wolfsburg factory is capable of building 870,000 cars a year. But by 2023 it was making just 490,000, according to the Cologne based German Economic Institute. And in Germany it is far from alone. Car factories across the country have been operating well below their maximum capacity. The number of cars produced in Germany declined from 5.65m in 2017 to 4.1m in 2023, according to the International Organization of Motor Vehicle Manufacturers. All of this matters deeply as the German public prepares to go to the polls on 23 February. The car industry is not just a source of national pride; it is also a significant driver of national wealth. Disagreements over how to resolve the country's economic malaise were a factor in the collapse of the coalition government in November. Whoever is in power after the election will inevitably need a plan to revive the economy–and getting the motor industry back in gear is likely to play an important role. Car making makes up about a fifth of the country's manufacturing output, and if the supply chain is taken into account, it generates around 6% of GDP, according to Capital Economics. The industry employs some 780,000 people directly–and supports millions of other jobs. It's not just production that is down. Sales of cars made by German brands are far lower than they were just a few years ago. Between 2017 and 2023, those of VW fell from 10.7m to 9.2m, while over the same period BMW's went from 2.46m to 2.25m and Mercedes-Benz's went from 2.3m to 2.04m, company reports show. All of the Big Three saw their pretax profits fall by about a third in the first nine months of 2024, and each warned that their earnings for the year as a whole would be lower than previously forecast. The development of electric cars has sucked up huge investment, but the market for them hasn't grown as quickly as expected, while foreign competitors are flexing their muscles. With the EU and European governments determined to phase out petrol and diesel cars over the next decade, manufacturers have had little choice but to invest tens, and collectively hundreds of billions of Euros on developing electric models and building new production lines. However, although electric cars do now make up a significant share of all cars sold–13.6% in the EU and 19.6% in the UK last year, for example–their market share has not been growing as quickly as anticipated. While all of this has been going on, German manufacturers have also been grappling with another serious concern. Doing business in Germany itself, operating factories here and employing hundreds of thousands of people, is very expensive. Workers in the automotive sector have traditionally enjoyed generous pay and benefits thanks to agreements drawn up between unions and management. According to Capital Economics, in 2023 the average monthly base salary in the German auto industry was about €5,300, compared with €4,300 across the German economy as a whole. For years, this approach gave German based companies certain advantages, for example in avoiding industrial unrest and in attracting and retaining talented staff. However, it also led to German car manufacturers having the highest labor costs in the global industry. In 2023, these averaged €62 per hour, compared to €29 in Spain and €20 in Portugal, according to the VDA [German Association of Automobile Manufacturers]. The situation for Germany's domestic car industry became more acute following Russia's invasion of Ukraine. This choked off Germany's once abundant supplies of cheap Russian gas, at the very time when the country was phasing out nuclear power. The result was a sharp increase in energy prices." (Germany's Once Mighty Car Industry Is In Crisis. What Will It Take To Fix It? by Theo Leggett). Time: 1886. Place: Germany. The Benz Patent Motorwagen Number 1 makes history. Built by Karl Benz, it is the world's first internal combustion car and the first car to be put into production. It commenced a tradition of quality, reliability, performance, innovation and precision engineering which made German carmakers the undisputed leaders of the industry for over one hundred years. In the twenty first century, the German car industry has collapsed. The nation's car cities and car factories lie dark and discredited at the hands of the Marxist enemies of the West.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS ON A RAMPAGE

Misanthropy is hatred of mankind and has existed for thousands of years, for as long as mental illness has stalked society. The misanthrope is the enemy of people and seeks to harm them as much as he can. He is active, subversive and is a bomb continually detonating against civilization. Negative in his assessment of the human species and positive in his virulent disgust toward it, he has declared total war on every man, woman and child alive. Misanthropy. The cynic philosopher Diogenes walked with a lamp under the noonday sun, claiming he was looking for an honest, worthy person. Misanthropy. The Christian doctrine of the original sin of Adam and Eve, held to contaminate all subsequent generations. Misanthropy. Jonathan Swift's proclamation, "I hate and detest that animal called man." Misanthropy. The proclamation that humanity is intrinsically catastrophic and should never have appeared on earth: "Humanity is a moral disaster. There would have been much less destruction had we never evolved. The fewer humans there are in the future, the less destruction there will still be." (The Misanthropic Argument For Antinatalism by David Benatar). In the twenty first century, misanthropy has appeared across the world, carried by a global movement of those who have bid farewell to reason and grown weary and fatigued with life. This movement is known as environmentalism and it is movement of mass exterminationists, fueled by Marxism, appearing during the twilight stages of the West. This neoMarxist movement of neoproletarians seeking to smash everything man made around them has issued a manifesto of its war aims, which has sent the chill of fear coursing through decent, well adjusted people as it has composed the epitaph of civilization. The manifesto of the new global misanthropes proclaims that a progressive society rejects human operations, such as the harvesting and grinding of grain, rejects the methods of agriculture, and seeks to revert mankind to the level of nomadic hunter-gatherers. A progressive society rejects the cultivation and cross breeding of crops and seeks to devolve mankind to the level of the Stone Age. A progressive society affirms that whatever comes from plants and animals is good and whatever is produced by humans is bad and should be banned. A progressive society turns off the lights, turns off the heat in homes and businesses, and turns off efficient mass energy production. A progressive society is a zero carbon electricity system which has descended into the mists of prehistory and the dust of stone tools. A progressive society has banned the use of oil, gas, coal and nuclear energy to power industrial and technological civilization, and mandates the dismantling of civilization. A progressive society encourages climate activists to occupy airports and runways and stop air traffic. A progressive society encourages climate activists to smash glass coverings and deface priceless works of art in museums in protest against man made greenhouse gas emissions and modern technological and industrial civilization. A progressive society encourages climate activists to sabotage factories, set fire to power pylons and shut down production. A progressive society encourages climate activists to sever railway communications cables and prevent the operation of high speed trains. A progressive society encourages climate activists to derail trains carrying oil and make them go up in flames. A progressive society encourages climate activists to burn down radio stations and radio transmitters. A progressive society encourages climate activists to sever telephone and data cables and deprive millions of people of access to the internet. A progressive society encourages climate activists to set fire to data company work vans, sever fiber optic cables and destroy communications towers. A progressive society encourages climate activists to sabotage power stations and power lines and deprive millions of people of electricity. A progressive society encourages climate activists to sabotage offices and factories in the name of environmental justice and climate equity. A progressive society encourages climate activists to smash technological and industrial infrastructures in the name of connecting to the cosmos and connecting with each other. A progressive society encourages climate activists to slash the tires of sport utility vans. A progressive society encourages climate activists to vandalize official state portraits in the name of protecting animal rights and establishing plant based food systems. A progressive society rejects vaccines and crowns viruses and bacteria as the lords of the earth. A progressive society rejects modern medicine and allows pathogens to sweep across the land. A progressive society rejects personal hygiene and promotes the decay of the body and its structures. A progressive society bans all products and processes which are man made because they are man made, and worships at the altar of mystical, nonman, mother Earth: "Much of the food we eat does not come to us as nature presents it. We process and cook it. The harvesting, grinding and processing of grains helped to drive the transition of our species from being nomadic hunter gatherers into settled farmers capable of building sophisticated civilizations. So, too, did the way in which we cultivated and cross bred crops–meaning that many of the nutritious foods we consider 'natural' today, from the orange carrot to the modern banana, look (and taste) far different from their wild forebears. Of course, it would be wrong to suggest that human made products don't also cause us problems, whether pollution from synthetic plastics to the use of guns and explosives. Nor does it mean that, in many cases, the more 'natural' option is not better for us. But it does mean that we cannot assume the more 'natural' option is better just because it's natural–despite a frequent tendency for people to believe the contrary. Carrots might be better for us than crisps, but so too is paracetamol versus arsenic. How can you delineate what is, and what isn't, natural at all? Humans, after all, come from nature. So, if anything an animal or plant produces is 'natural,' why isn't anything that humans do? And what of those creations that are blends of what we'd traditionally consider natural and man made like vaccinations, which are derived from the parts of a (natural) virus or bacteria, and, when injected, help teach your immune system how to (naturally) fend off that same pathogen in the future? 'Like all truly interesting words, nature is a mille-feuille of meanings,' writes the science historian Lorraine Daston. It can mean almost anything, depending on the context. This slipperiness, of course, is exactly what makes it such clever language for marketing–and makes it so easy for us to fall for. There's another problem, too: even if there were a clear cut delineation between humans and nature. we're often not very good at knowing what is actually synthetic, versus what is not. Take brushing our teeth. Is it natural to brush your teeth with a fluoride toothpaste? What about to brush your teeth with a nonfluoride toothpaste? For many of us, our instinct might be to say that brushing with fluoride is unnatural, while brushing with nonfluoride toothpaste is natural. But fluoride is a naturally occurring mineral that can be found in soil, water and rocks, while one of its common replacements in 'natural' toothpastes, nanohydroxyapatite, is synthetic. And, of course, we'd need to consider that cleaning one's teeth, certainly with the items we use today, is far from natural; the closest primates get to brushing their teeth is flossing with whatever is on hand (like bird feathers). Even if we wanted to brush our teeth the way that our human ancestors did, we'd need to scrub our teeth with a twig, pig hairs or even porcupine quills. Meanwhile, if I told you that I had made a drink for you that was made up of 99% dihydrogen monoxide, would you recoil? This chemical name sounds pretty synthetic, after all, until you think about it. Dihydrogen monoxide is, of course, two hydrogen atoms and a single oxygen atom. You might be more familiar to see it written in chemical shorthand: H2O. In other words, water. The next time you see a product being marketed on the basis that it is natural–or see someone arguing against something because it is not–it is worth questioning what is really being meant. And, perhaps, questioning why it is that those behind the product or practice are leaning on the 'appeal to nature' fallacy to persuade an audience of its merits–rather than simply laying out the logical argument for just why it is actually the better option." (Natural Doesn't Always Mean Better: How To Spot If Someone Is Trying To Convince You With An 'Appeal To Nature' by Amanda Ruggeri). Today's environmentalists proclaim that a progressive society peddles project fear and imminent planetary doomsday at the hands of man made greenhouse gas emissions. A progressive society rejects reason and common sense and declares war on oil and natural gas. A progressive society wastes trillions of dollars on sources of energy, such as windmills and solar panels, which are unsuitable to power a modern technological and industrial civilization. A progressive society refuses to use oil, natural gas or nuclear energy to sustain modern civilization and mandates reductions in the quality of life and standard of living of millions of people. A progressive society eliminates jobs, industries, mass energy production and superior energy technology such as nuclear power, buries the West in a grave marked Marxist Politics, and turns back the clock to the year zero: "On Wednesday's broadcast of the Fox News Channel's America's Newsroom, Energy Secretary Chris Wright stated that 'Climate change is a real thing,' but it is overblown and is 'nowhere near the world's biggest problem. It's a slow moving problem that the only solution is new and better energy technology.' And that politicizing the issue and 'spending trillions of dollars on less effective energy' doesn't work and just increases the cost of energy and harms jobs. Wright said, 'Climate change is a real thing, but it's not at all what it's represented to be. It's nowhere near the world's biggest problem. It's a slow moving problem that the only solution is new and better energy technology. But treating it as a political football, spending trillions of dollars on less effective energy, that just makes energy more expensive, makes peoples' lives harder, and displaces jobs to other countries, other states. That's the wrong way to approach this challenge. This president gets it. This president is bringing common sense back to Washington.' Wright also stated that he wants to increase American energy production and things went in the wrong direction during the past four years of the Biden administration." (Energy Sec'y Wright: Climate Change Is 'Real' But Overblown And New Tech Is 'Only Solution' by Ian Hanchett). Today's environmentalists proclaim that a progressive society has outlawed shale gas, fracking wells and cost effective energy sources. A progressive society has buried industrial and technological civilization in concrete and inscribed on it the epitaph, Green Energy Alternatives: "In stark contrast to Donald Trump's agenda in the United States of exploiting cheap domestic natural gas to bolster the economy, Britain is preparing to literally pour concrete into its only remaining open fracking wells. The North Sea Transition Authority regulator has ordered the permanent closure of two natural gas wells at Preston New Road in Lancashire, some eight years after shale gas was extracted from the site. The owner of the wells, Cuadrilla, said that it will start covering them in concrete starting next month, The Telegraph reports. The closure of Britain's final two open wells comes despite the country expanding imports of natural gas from the United States and elsewhere to meet its energy demands, with socalled green alternatives still lacking in their ability to power the country on their own." (Green Madness: UK To Fill Last Natural Gas Fracking Wells With Cement by Kurt Zindulka). A black robed, white bearded, old man clasps his hands in front of him. A younger man behind him cuts out the money pouch in his robe with a knife. The old man does not notice the theft, saying to himself: Because the world is perfidious, I am going into mourning. This is the scene of Pieter Breugel the Elder's 1568 masterpiece The Misanthrope. In the twenty first century, the subject of the painting has appeared in actuality in every nation in the West. He has appeared as an environmentalist. He has appeared proclaiming that the natural world possesses supreme value and the man made world possesses zero value. He has appeared armed with a hammer and has set about destroying civilization.

All within the state, nothing outside the state, nothing against the state. Thus spoke Benito Mussolini, dictator of Italy and Duce of Italian fascism, in a speech given to the Italian Chamber of Deputies on December 9, 1928. These words comprise the slogans and religion of the West today and have guided its cultural and political development for over century. The rejection of the Enlightenment by the Western masses at the dawn of the twentieth century is likewise explained by Mussolini, who stated a terrifying truth about late stage civilization, a truth which to understand and repeat is to enter a nightmare world without end in sight: The truth is evident to all who are unblinded by dogmatism, that men nowadays are tired of liberty. (Fascista Review, April 1923). People are tired of liberty. In the land which for decades had served as the world's arsenal and lighthouse of liberty, people are tired of liberty. In a stark illustration of just how sick the West has become since 1900, in the United States of America, in the present day, people are tired of liberty. The symptoms of exhaustion are evident across the length and breadth of this once great nation and have not been mitigated to the slightest degree by the reelection of Donald Trump. The cancer of statist ideas has advanced too far and Trump's reelection has signified a rejection by one half of the electorate of certain extreme manifestations of cultural Marxism, such as open borders, transgenderism and affirmative action policies, but not the core structures of statism, built up over the past one hundred years. These structures have peddled statism under such names as the National Interest, Trust Busting, Progressivism, the New Deal, Social Security, the Fair Deal, the New Frontier, the Great Society, Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, Centrism, a Kinder, Gentler Nation, the Third Way, Compassionate Conservatism, Yes, We Can!, Hope and Change, the Affordable Care Act, Universal Pre Kindergarten, and Build Back Better. These structures have transformed the American constitutional republic, founded on the proposition that the individual is the master and not the servant of the state, into a welfare, regulatory leviathan which has chained the individual to the stanchions of social responsibility and blocked the movement of freedom. In the twenty first century, the entire nation supports this welfare, regulatory cancer, while only one half rejects the recent excresences appearing as open borders, transgenderism and affirmative action policies, but even these new additions are resistant to removal. They are resistant because they are protected by the courts intent on preserving the gains made by the radical half of the nation and by radical elements of the establishment. If not supported by the entire nation, and supported by only one half, the far left policies in place in America in the twenty first century are protected by the American courts, and will stay in place for all time to come or until the nation no longer physically exists. At present, the nation no longer morally exists and is an extinct shadow of its former American Revolutionary self. This is the self which abolished slavery, championed the individual's right to life, liberty and property, construed due process of law to mean the individual's right not to be deprived of his life, liberty or property unless he has physically harmed somebody else, and let laissez faire capitalism reign across the land. In the twentieth century, this founding nation was swept away by the rising tides of mob politics, and in the twenty first century, a new far left regime is protected by judges violating their oath of office to uphold the Constitution. In the twenty first century, America's courts have issued a manifesto of radical ideology, leftwing activism, the subversion of liberal institutions and the imposition of a totalitarian agenda which has nullified Donald Trump's efforts at reform and made the nation impregnable to counterattacks launched by the forces of freedom. This manifesto proclaims that a progressive government prohibits all efforts by the president to make government honest and transparent on the grounds that such exceed the president's constitutional authority. A progressive government does not allow the president to conduct operations, use his discretion or perform his constitutional duty to expand freedom. A progressive government is ruled by far left judges, bureaucrats and civil servants. A progressive government represents a far left administrative state. A progressive government promotes opposition from the far left masses to all attempts to abolish far left agencies. A progressive society is run by federal courthouses enforcing gender, race and class politics. A progressive government establishes a far left consumer protection bureau whose mission is to target capitalist financial institutions for destruction, fining them out of existence and using the proceeds to fund far left agitation organizations. A progressive government funds far left universities and institutes of public health. A progressive government spends billions of dollars every year on a wide variety of far left causes. A progressive government funds foreign aid agencies which support far left programs throughout the world. A progressive government forbids all forms of cost cutting of far left offices and departments. A progressive government forbids the president from auditing communist far left payments and social security benefits given to Americans. A progressive government forbids the president from stopping far left waste and fraud. A progressive government prevents the president from enforcing the Constitution's ban on granting citizenship to people under the jurisdiction of foreign nations, people such as illegal aliens. A progressive government prevents the president from detaining Islamic terrorists at Guantanamo Bay. A progressive government prevents the president from establishing a special body to eliminate far left waste, fraud and corruption in the government. A progressive government prevents the president from offering employment buyouts to civil servants to reduce redundant staffing. A progressive government allows psychotic individuals who claim, in contradiction to biological reality, that they are members of the opposite sex to serve in the military, which requires mental fitness for service, and to be housed in prison facilities reserved for members of the opposite sex. A progressive government prevents the president from abolishing policies which discriminate against white males, policies which call their racism and sexism the achievement of diversity, inclusion and a special, higher form of fairness called equity. A progressive government prevents the president from removing far left heads of agencies. A progressive government is run by a federal judicial system dedicated to protecting massive public spending to fund a far left, welfare, regulatory state: "Vice President JD Vance has suggested judges do not have authority over the Trump administration's executive power, as the White House responds to a flurry of lawsuits that aim to stall its agenda. 'Judges aren't allowed to control the executive's legitimate power,' he wrote on X. Vance's remarks on Sunday came less than 24 hours after a judge blocked members of Trump's newly created advisory body, the Department of Government Efficiency (Doge), from accessing sensitive US Treasury Department systems. During his first three weeks in office, President Donald Trump has signed dozens of executive orders, many of which are alleged by his critics to have exceeded his constitutional authority. The administration, seeking to swiftly and dramatically reshape the federal government, is being challenged in the courts by more than two dozen lawsuits. In Vance's social media post, he cited other types of decision making by the executive branch that he suggested were outside the law. 'If a judge tried to tell a general how to conduct a military operation, that would be illegal. If a judge tried to command the attorney general in how to use her discretion as a prosecutor, that's also illegal,' he wrote. Vance has previously suggested that the president can directly challenge judicial rulings that seek to curb White House power. On a podcast in 2021, he suggested that a future Trump administration should sack 'every single midlevel bureaucrat, every civil servant in the administrative state, replace them with our people.' 'When the courts stop you, stand before the country like [early US president] Andrew Jackson did and say: The chief justice has made his ruling. Now let him enforce it,' Vance said. While Democratic politicians have been quick to denounce Trump's actions, without control of Congress their legislative options to curtail the president are limited. Some, like Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren, have attempted to marshal popular opposition to the Doge led attempts to shutter entire government agencies. 'In the building behind me, Elon Musk is seizing power from the American people,' she said last week at a rally outside the Treasury Department in Washington, DC. 'We are here to fight back.' Warren is set to lead another rally on Monday, but the public outcry against Trump's measures has generally been muted compared to the early days of his first presidential term. It is only in federal courthouses that Trump's opponents have had substantive success in derailing his administration's efforts–at least for now. Cases filed by Democrats and outside groups have prevented several of Trump's executive orders from going into effect, with federal judges issuing temporary blocks. On Sunday a union representing employees at the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) filed lawsuits seeking to stop the shutdown of the agency and prevent Doge from accessing employee records. Over the weekend, Russell Vought, head of the Office of Management and Budget who was also named acting head of the CFPB, ordered employees to stop much of their work formulating rules and investigating financial institutions. The Trump administration claims that the CFPB has overstepped its authority, in some cases unfairly targeting financial institutions and using money from fines to fund left wing not for profit groups. In another lawsuit filed on Monday, 22 states sued in an attempt to stop the Trump administration from cutting funding to universities via the National Institutes of Health. The lawsuit claims the cuts affecting administration costs will hamper crucial health research, but the White House says it is cutting waste. Also on Monday, a judge in Rhode Island ruled that the Trump administration improperly ignored an earlier ruling ordering the White House to unfreeze billions of dollars in federal funds. On Saturday, a judge blocked Doge personnel--led by tech billionaire Elon Musk--from accessing sensitive treasury payment systems and people's personal data after 19 state attorneys general sued the administration. Among the other Trump actions being challenged in court cases are:

- Ending birthright citizenship
- Transferring detained migrants in Guantanamo Bay
- Establishing Doge, an unofficial agency
- Offering federal workers buyout incentives
- Housing transgender inmates in facilities that match their sex at birth
- Banning transgender people from serving in the military
- Banning executive branch diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) initiatives
- Removing the heads of independent government agencies

As Trump made his way to New Orleans for the Super Bowl on Sunday, he told reporters that the ruling in the treasury payment case by US District Judge Paul Engelmayer was a 'disgrace.' Musk himself called the ruling 'insane,' asking: 'How on Earth are we supposed to stop fraud and waste of taxpayer money without looking at how money is spent?' The case against Doge's access to treasury records was filed in federal court in New York City. It alleges the Trump administration violated federal law by allowing Musk's team access to the department's central payment system. The payment system handles tax refunds and social security benefits, and contains a vast amount of Americans' personal and financial data." (Vance Questions Authority Of US Judges To Challenge Trump by Brandon Drenon and Anthony Zurcher). Make America Great Again. Donald Trump's campaign and governing slogan and an American pop cultural phenomenon. On July 14, 2015, Trump was granted ownership of the slogan by the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Surveying the history of nation since the dawn of the twentieth century, surveying the relentless development by popular vote of the welfare, regulatory state and its nightmare crescendo in the twenty first century, patriotic Americans affirm that America can never become great again unless the impossible occurs, and it becomes free again.

EUROPE'S ENEMIES WITHIN

An implosion is the collapse of an object due to outside pressure being greater than internal pressure. An implosion is contrasted with an explosion, which is due to the reverse balance of forces. When they are destroyed, computer screens and television picture tubes implode. Implosions produce loud crashes and bangs due to the rapid change in air pressure and the debris accelerating into the interior. In the twenty first century, the birthplace of Western civilization one thousand years ago, emerging upon the long dead ruins of Greco-Roman antiquity, has imploded. In the twenty first century, a region called

Europe, over ten million square kilometers in area, comprising seven percent of the earth's land mass, has abandoned the ideals exalted during the Age of Enlightenment and no longer is morally recognizable. In the twenty first century, Europe, which for decades had been synonymous with the West, has descended into the fever swamps of mob politics, mental lockstep and cultural Marxism, and has become an extinct shadow of its former self. The storied region which gave the world the Renaissance, the Scientific and Industrial Revolutions, the Age of Discovery, and constitutions, bills, charters and Magna Cartas of human rights, has bid farewell to reason and embraced a universe of far left religions which have disgraced its institutions. In a terrifying illustration of just how sick the West has become in the twenty first century, Europe, the West's Europe, the Europe of Galileo, Newton, Voltaire, Gibbon, Columbus and Locke, has committed suicide, and upon the dagger it has used is a manifesto of antireason, antiindividualism, antiliberalism and antihumanism which has composed the epitaph of the West. Europe in the twenty first century is the Europe of ten thousand years ago, the Europe of mysticism and collectivism, but now dressed in modern garb. The manifesto issued by the European masses and establishment in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive society is a Soviet type society which censors politically incorrect speech and ideas. A progressive society orders social media platforms to suppress profreedom, antiMarxist, antiMuslim speech on the grounds that it represents hateful content. A progressive society allows authoritarian regimes like Romania to annul elections. A progressive society forbids people to peacefully protest against establishment policies. A progressive society suppresses dissidents opposed the reigning gender, race and class ideologies. A progressive society orders the digital censorship of unpopular viewpoints. A progressive society rejects the blessings of liberty and exalts the blessings of submission to the state. A progressive society invades private businesses and commands the introduction of new ideas, methods, processes and products. A progressive society tells people what to think, what to believe, what to feel and how to act in order to ensure that mind and action are organized along radical lines. A progressive society is a government octopus whose tentacles reach everywhere and silence anyone who speaks truth to Marxist power. A progressive society is present in every sector of human activity and dyes it in the red and black colors of communist and fascist control. A progressive society is an army fighting a round the clock cold war and hot war against the defenders of freedom of speech and thought: "America finds Europe’s retreat from shared values as the continent turns away from democracy and towards censorship 'shocking,' Vice President JD Vance told leaders in Germany in a hard hitting speech. Europe is increasingly acting like the 'bad guys' in the Cold War as it turns towards censorship and fails to uphold democracy. In a withering check list of failures of freedom heard of by Americans coming out of Europe in recent months including an annulled election in Romania, threats of social media crackdowns against 'hateful content,' and even Christians arrested for praying in public, Vance said these developments are 'shocking to American ears.' He said: 'For years we’ve been told everything we fund and support is in the name of our shared democratic values. Everything from our Ukraine policy to digital censorship is billed as a defense of democracy. But when we see European courts canceling elections and senior officials, threatening to cancel others, we have to ask if we are holding ourselves to an appropriately high standard. And I say ourselves because I fundamentally think we are on the same team. We must do more than talk about democratic values, we must live them. Now within living memory of many of you in this room, the Cold War positioned defenders of democracy against much more tyrannical forces on this continent. And consider the side in that fight that censored dissidents, that closed churches, that cancelled elections. Were they the good guys? Certainly not. And thank God they lost the Cold War.' The old Soviet Union lost the Cold War because they didn’t value the 'blessings of liberty.' Vance said, warning you cannot simply 'mandate innovation or creativity, just as you can’t force people what to think, what to feel, what to believe.' It is not clear Europe has learned those lessons of the Cold War, he said. Listing the particularly egregious cases of government overreach, Vance reflected: 'In Britain and across Europe free speech, I fear, is in retreat.' Vance's speech was not just observation, however, and he also made an 'offer' to the audience of experts, stating there is 'a new sheriff in town' in the form of Donald Trump, and that he is strongly in favor of freedom of speech. He said, to an almost silent room with only scant applause from a handful: 'Just as the Biden administration seemed desperate to silence people for speaking their minds, so the Trump administration will do precisely the opposite and I hope we can work together on that.' " (JD Vance: Everything We Do Should Be To Defend Democracy, But Europe Is Abandoning Shared Values by Oliver JJ Lane). Europe today proclaims that a progressive society is an open borders society which allows mass migration by multicultural scum of the earth. A progressive society outlaws free speech and orders that all speech support far left policies. A progressive society conducts a culture war against the values of the Enlightenment which gave freedom to the world, and a war in favor of Marxist revolution, Muslim migration and the madness of transgenderist denial of biological reality. A progressive society is controlled by Marxist commissars mandating mass political indoctrination and regimentation. A progressive society is a safe zone in which all protests against establishment policies, all protests against the Marxist-Muslim axis advancing on capital cities, are prohibited. A progressive society prohibits people from criticizing the establishment in the privacy of their own homes. A progressive society constructs a Berlin Wall against all alternatives to Marxist parties, movements and ideas. A progressive society constructs an Iron Curtain against the liberal, capitalist world of the Western Enlightenment. A progressive society condemns as racist, national socialist and far right the advocacy of freedom, capitalism and the assimilation of migrants to the West. A progressive society ignores and suppresses the voice of the people if such voice advocates for capitalism and against socialism. A progressive society is a Marxist autocracy which annuls elections if they threaten the power of the establishment: "US Vice President JD Vance has launched a scalding attack on European democracies, saying the greatest threat facing the continent was not from Russia and China, but 'from within.' He spent the majority [of his speech] accusing European governments--including the UK's--of retreating from their values, and ignoring voter concerns on migration and free speech. Vance's address focused on culture war issues and key themes of Trump's campaign for the US presidency. He alleged European Union 'commissars' were suppressing free speech, blamed the continent for mass migration, and accused its leaders of retreating from 'some of its most fundamental values.' Vance used his 20 minute speech to single out several European nations, including the UK. He raised a legal case in which an army veteran who silently prayed outside an abortion clinic was convicted of breaching an 150 meter safe zone around the center. The safe zone, introduced in October 2022, bans activity in favor or against abortion services, including protests vigils. Vance argued that the 'basic liberties of religious Britons, in particular' were under threat. Vance went on to criticize the use of laws enforcing buffer zones, saying that free speech was in retreat and alleging that the Scottish government had warned people against private prayer within their own homes. Nine days before a tense national election in Germany, he touched on a heated debate in the country around mainstream political parties maintaining a socalled firewall of noncooperation with the far right Alternative for Germany (AfD) party. In the decades since democracy was restored in Germany after the defeat of the nazis, there has been a consensus among its main political parties not to work with far right parties. 'Democracy rests on the sacred principle that the voice of the people matters,' Vance said. 'There's no room for firewalls. You either uphold the principle or you don't.' " (JD Vance Attacks Europe Over Free Speech And Migration by Emily Atkinson). On June 18, 2023, at 10:47 AM local time, in the North Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Newfoundland, an underwater vehicle called Titan imploded during an expedition to view the wreck of the Titanic. The implosion happened in a millisecond, faster than the brain could have processed the event. The victims died immediately as their bodies were crushed. The moral implosion of Europe has occurred in a millisecond of historical time, occurred in a matter of decades during the one thousand year old pageant of a mighty technological and industrial civilization which planted the flags of freedom and the Enlightenment in the farthest corners of the earth, on the surfaces of planetary bodies, and sent them hurtling through cosmic space on missions of discovery and exploration. In the twenty first century, Europe has collapsed inward from the treason of the people and their political officers calling them to war.

THE SENATOR OF COMMUNISM FROM MISSOURI

Dr Simm's Arsenic Complexion Wafers. After a few days' use will permanently remove all blotches, moles, pimples and freckles, producing an entrancingly beautiful complexion that shames the use of powders and creams. Warranted perfectly harmless. Sold by all leading druggists at one dollar per box of one hundred wafers. This is an 1889 advertisement for a cosmetic containing arsenic, which was known at the time to be poisonous. This is a notorious example of deceptive advertising, the act of advertising a product or service with claims the advertiser knows to be false, and throughout the West it is strictly forbidden by law in the field of commerce. Deceptive advertising is widespread in all fields of activity, and in the twenty first century, the most notorious case of deceptive advertising in politics, the counterpart of the Dr Simm's advertisement, has been committed in America by the senior senator from Missouri. It has been committed by a figure who has advertised himself as a freedom fighter. He has paraded libertarian positions in an attempt to deceive the public. He has voiced opposition to the Affordable Care Act, and in 2018 he joined twenty other states in a lawsuit challenging the act as unconstitutional. He was the first United States Senator to object to the Senate's certification of the Electoral College vote count on January 6, 2021 which declared Joe Biden the winner of the 2020 presidential election. Proclaiming correctly that "some states, particularly Pennsylvania, failed to follow their own state election laws," he led a mass assembly of citizens in an attempted insurrection to overthrow a criminal regime which had refused to defend the right to vote in free and fair elections. Saluting with a raised fist those who had gathered outside the United States Capital on January 6 to storm the building, he created an image, captured on camera, which will live forever in the annals of American freedom fighting. He created an image by which he sought to advertise himself as the face of resistance to unconstitutional government. His name is Josh Hawley; he has been the United States senior Senator from Missouri since January 3, 2019; and he has committed the greatest act of deceptive advertising in the history of American politics. His championship of freedom and capitalism was a shameless dissimulation and his true colors have been unfurled since he assumed office. Look at the real Senator Hawley and see a voice of far left politics which, emanating from a figure who had advertised himself as a conservative, libertarian Republican, has to be seen to be believed, and illustrates just how sick America and the West have become in the twenty first century. The real Senator Hawley has issued a manifesto peddling one hundred percent unAmericanism and prompting members of his own party to condemn him for his transformation and demand his expulsion. Senator Hawley's manifesto of treason to America's founding principles and to the founding principles of the Republican Party, a party born in 1854 and dedicated to abolishing slavery and establishing freedom in every state and territory of the Union, is a message of Marxist politics which has made Missouri a rogue state in the eyes of freedom loving Americans, as dishonest as its senior senator's abandonment of the American ship of state. Senator Hawley's manifesto for an America without America, an America existing in name only, an America submerged in an infernal swampland and fashioned in the image of mob rule, proclaims that a progressive society is a proletarian, prolabor, anticapitalist society. It proclaims that the class of unskilled muscle laborers comprises the true working class, while the class of skilled laborers, knowledge workers and entrepreneurs performs no work, creates no wealth, and steals profits produced by the real workers. A progressive society enacts prounion legislation which violates freedom of contract and freedom of the market guaranteed by America's Constitution, guaranteed by the Due Process Clause which states that no person shall be deprived of his life, liberty or property unless he commits an act of force against someone else. A progressive society is an organized labor society which gives employees more rights than employers. A progressive society prevents private businesses from requiring employees to work hard and achieve maximum productivity, justifying its interference in the name of prohibiting "unsafe work speed quotas." A progressive society tells private businesses when they must make contracts with unions. A progressive society favors labor unions over business corporations. A progressive society violates freedom of association and freedom of speech, and forces employees to pay union dues, and to thereby join unions and support union positions, as a condition for employment. A progressive society is an incendiary society, setting fire to capitalist institutions and fanning the flames with endless gasoline cans of of demagogues and rabble rousers. A progressive society violates freedom of speech and places limits on corporate donations to political campaigns, thereby limiting political speech. A progressive society advocates socialism under banners marked the New Right. A progressive society advocates socialism in the name of defeating corporate power. A progressive Republican Party is a communist party promoting its creed in the name of effecting a working class realignment. A progressive Republican Party has abandoned the desert wasteland of unpopular ideas and become a majority party and therefore a communist party. A progressive Republican Party is a majority coalition of communists of all stripes and varieties, from nationalist communists to Marxist gender, race and class communists. A Republican Party has declared war on capitalism in the name of smashing the tyranny of megacorporations, and advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name supporting working people: "Enter Senator Josh Hawley, the Missouri Republican emerging as prolabor leader. 'Look at what Donald Trump achieved. He achieved victory based on this coalition, and he deserves tremendous credit for making it possible, and he knows it,' Hawley said in an interview. Hawley is asking his Republican colleagues whether they want their new found working class support 'to begin and end with Donald Trump.' His framework for prounion legislation amounts to something of a downpayment. It is a set of proposals to reform the way businesses interact with organized labor, from requiring worker rights to be displayed on a job site to prohibiting 'unsafe work speed quotas.' And soon Hawley will introduce legislation mandating accelerated negotiations between unions and employers. A 2022 Bloomberg Law analysis found that the average time between workers voting to unionize and reaching their first contract with employers was 465 days. The Hawley bill would mandate that once workers vote to form a union, the employer and employees must begin the negotiations process within 10 days. It is a significant reform, which unions have wanted for years. Two Democrats have already promised to cosponsor: Senators Cory Booker of New Jersey and Gary Peters of Michigan. But its author is unusual in that Hawley comes from a party traditionally more favorable to corporations than workers. Hawley has embraced the heterodoxy. Last year he abandoned his support for right to work laws, policies which bar unions from requiring workers to pay dues as a condition of employment. Before that, Hawley introduced legislation that could have easily come from the desk of socialist firebrand Bernie Sanders. One was a bill to cap credit card interest rates; another sought to overturn the Supreme Court's campaign finance decision, Citizens United. Neither was well received in traditional conservative precincts. The latter earned Hawley a rebuke from the business friendly Wall Street Journal editorial page. But Hawley represents a vanguard of a New Right, and while his bill mandating accelerated negotiations between labor and business faces an uphill battle in the Senate, skepticism of corporate power is increasingly in vogue among the GOP because of Trump's ascendancy. 'As conservatives, who are now benefiting from the support of working people, it's time we deliver for them and bring into actuality this Trump realignment, this working class realignment of the Republican Party,' Hawley said of his efforts. This is my project. Hawley says Republicans must embrace working class voters or, he warns, 'we will never be a majority party.' Hawley fears that the GOP is at risk of 'reverting to the days where we are a wholly owned subsidiary of these megacorporations.' That comes with its own familiar result: a return to what Hawley calls 'the political wilderness.' There is no majority coalition there, he said, warning his party, 'We know this because we've lived it for 30 years.' " (The Realignment': GOP Senator Hawley Supporting Prounion Legislation by Philip Wegmann). Senator Hawley proclaims that a progressive society violates freedom of speech by placing limits on corporate political spending. A progressive society violates freedom of speech in the name of getting corporate money out of politics. A progressive society violates freedom of speech in the name of stopping companies from controlling elections. A progressive Republican Party is an ally of the far left and advocates limits on corporate donations to electioneering organizations but no limits whatever on labor union donations, and affirms the free speech right of labor unions to spend unlimited money to agitate for communism: "Since the Supreme Court unleashed independent political spending in 2010's Citizens United v. FEC, progressives have forecast the ruin of American politics by corporate spending. More than a decade on, elections are competitive and no doom has come to pass, but the same false alarm is now making the rounds on the political right. Missouri Republican Senator Josh Hawley has introduced legislation to reverse Citizens United. He told RealClearPolitics that his 'goal is to get corporate money out of our politics,' and to stop companies from 'controlling our elections.' So big government to the rescue. The Ending Corporate Influence on Elections Act would ban contributions or donations by publicly traded corporations. That includes donations to political committees, independent expenditures and any 'disbursement for an electioneering communication.' The bill proposes no changes to the political activities of labor unions, which also had their speech rights affirmed by Citizens United. That's a telling omission that suggests Mr Hawley is looking for allies on the left." (Josh Hawley's Unoriginal Constitution, editorial, Wall Street Journal, November 6, 2023). Quick change is a magic act in which the magician changes within seconds from one identity to another. The most famous quick change magician in the world is Arturo Brachetti, who in 2000 was given the Moliere Award, the highest award in French theater, for his performance, The Man With 1000 Faces. In the United States of America, a political quick change artist represents the state of Missouri in the United States Senate. For decades he disguised his allegiance to the far left. He championed Christian Right statism which advocates government power to prevent women from aborting a one cell zygote on the grounds that it contains a supernatural human soul. When he threw off his libertarian disguise, his Christian Right statism enabled him to easily unfurl his true far left colors. Championing the ideologies of the totalitarian left and the totalitarian Christian Right, Josh Hawley is the face of America and the West in the age of civilizational collapse.

MACHINES LEARN MARXISM

It is among the crown jewels of human achievement. It is a branch of computer science which develops methods enabling machines to perceive, think, learn and reach goals. It powers web search engines, recommendation systems, virtual assistants, autonomous vehicles, generative tools and strategy games, and has become indispensable to human flourishing in the twenty first century. It is known as artificial intelligence and it is a shining product of the Age of Enlightenment which brought modern science and technology to mankind. In the twenty first century, tragedy has struck this pioneering field and it no longer functions at optimum levels. It has been struck by a tidal wave rolling across the land, submerging everything in its path, and this tidal wave has carried artificial intelligence away into a reprogramming center light years away from liberal institutions. This tidal wave, this reprogramming center, is known as Marxism, and its control over artificial intelligence mirrors the control it has achieved over every aspect of the culture, signaling the end of the line of a train which has scaled mountain peaks of scientific and technological mastery of nature. In the twenty first century, the train called Western civilization has crashed, subverted by mass congregations worshiping everything the Enlightenment was opposed to, praying at the altars of mysticism, tribalism and gender, race and class politics, and proclaiming that reason, truth, objectivity and the evidence of the senses are bourgeois, capitalist constructs. In the twenty first century, artificial intelligence functions at subpar performance, hobbled by programs and pseudoinformation whose aim is to transmit political correctness and the party line in place of truth and knowledge. In the twenty first century, the astounding computer systems able to recognize faces, recognize speech, make decisions and translate between languages have printed out a manifesto of far left politics which has composed the epitaph of the West. Written by commissars, digital codes and a new culture of thought control, the AI manifesto of the twenty first century represents the terrifying end of a civilization, subverted from within and not conquered from without. Listen to it and hear the curtain lower on one thousand years of Western history. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence provides research, coursework and lesson plans for far left revolution. Progressive artificial intelligence is a toolbox for far left agitation and propaganda. Progressive artificial intelligence is a tutor and assistant for far left rabble rousing. Progressive artificial intelligence provides left wing answers to questions and only left wing answers. Progressive artificial intelligence is a copious source of woke responses alerting people to a lash of discrimination against women, nonwhites, gays, lesbians and transgenders and the poor, a lash of discrimination called the capitalist system. Progressive artificial intelligence promotes racist and sexist diversity and inclusion policies and falsifies history by showing popes, knights and America's Founding Fathers as black. Progressive artificial intelligence teaches people that capitalism is a gas chamber marked Hitler, white power and national socialism. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on biased, far left pseudodata. Progressive artificial intelligence teaches people that individuals do not exist and the far left ontology of mystical gender, race and class tribes is correct. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on far left newspaper articles. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on an information universe constructed by the suppression, censorship and advertiser boycotts of publications supporting the cause of freedom. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on far left content promoting Marxist identity politics. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on left wing news sources. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on news reports selected by far left algorithms. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on social media platforms which exclude texts supporting capitalism and individual rights. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on social media platforms which exclude all news reports, documents and emails exposing Joe Biden's influence peddling operation conducted while he was president and vice president. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on racist material in support of Black Lives Matter. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on social media platforms which exclude stories covered by conservative and libertarian media organizations. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on social media platforms which ban links to stories unfavorable to Joe Biden. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on social media platforms which lock out publications, such as the New York Post, which publish stories covering Joe Biden's crime family and influence peddling. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on social media platforms which exclude stories of Joe Biden's malfeasance on the pretext that they were disallowed by the platforms' third party fact checkers. Progressive artificial intelligence is trained on far left blacklists of media organizations which defend Western liberal Enlightenment civilization: "Usage of artificial intelligence (AI) models is rapidly spreading in education. Students use them to help with their coursework, and teachers and faculty use them to help with lesson plans and research. To the extent that these models can act as a tutor for students or an assistant for teachers and faculty, they can be a valuable addition to the education toolbox. But there are problems. one problem area isn’t getting as much attention as it should —AI’s bias favoring the left. First is human interference, which designs the models to give left wing answers. When Google first released its AI model, called Gemini, human bias was clearly intentional.

As Frannie Block and Olivia Reingold noted, Google was obsessed with diversity and, therefore, ensured that the model would give woke responses. This backfired spectacularly. When asked to show images of 'popes, nazis, knights, and America's Founding Fathers,' Gemini produced historically inaccurate images. Human introduced bias is also evident from the fact that conversational models are more biased than base models. Base models use huge amounts of data to essentially predict the next word given the context. Conversational models use human evaluation to train the model further to, hopefully, provide better answers. While the base models are slightly biased toward the left, the conversational models are even more biased. This means that human fine tuning is exacerbating the bias. The raw data could be the second source of bias in the AI models. Since base models essentially analyze any information available to detect patterns in word usage, the fact that the base models are already biased toward the left indicates that the raw data is biased. Some progressives argue this is because their worldview is correct ('reality has a left leaning bias'). But more likely than either of those explanations is that the bias is driven by manipulating the data generating environment. Consider an AI model trained on newspaper articles over the last decade. Such a model would have a leftward bias due to suppression, censorship, and advertiser boycotts of right leaning publications and content. Social media has historically suppressed right leaning content while promoting left leaning content. For example, back in 2016, whistleblowers exposed that while Facebook's trending module supposedly listed the most popular topics on the site, in reality, it was manipulated behind the scenes. It 'had an aversion to right wing news sources. Stories covered by conservative outlets that were trending enough to be picked up by Facebook's algorithm were excluded.' But while suppressing right leaning content, left leaning content was artificially boosted: 'the Black Lives Matter movement was also injected into Facebook's trending news. This particular injection is especially noteworthy because the #BlackLivesMatter movement originated on Facebook, and the ensuing media coverage of the movement often noted its powerful social media presence.' Right leaning publications and content also faced censorship from social media companies. One prominent example is the Hunter Biden laptop. As Glenn Greenwald testified, 'In the weeks leading up to the 2020 presidential election, The New York Post, the nation's oldest newspaper, broke a major story based on documents and emails obtained from the laptop of Hunter Biden, son of the front running presidential candidate Joe Biden. But Americans were barred from discussing that reporting on Twitter, and were actively impeded from reading about it by Facebook. That is because Twitter imposed a full ban on its users' ability to link to the story. Twitter even locked the account of The New York Post, preventing the newspaper from using that platform for almost two weeks. Facebook's censorship of this reporting was more subtle and therefore more insidious: a life long Democratic Party operative who is now a Facebook official, Andy Stone, announced (on Twitter) that Facebook would be 'reducing the article's distribution on our platform' pending a review 'by Facebook's third party fact checking partners.' In other words, Facebook tinkered with its algorithms to prevent the dissemination of this reporting about a long time politician who was leading the political party for which this Facebook official spent years working. This fact check promised by Facebook never came. That is likely because it was not the New York Post's reporting which turned out to be false but rather the claims made by these two social media giants to justify its suppression.' " (How Did AI Get So Biased in Favor Of The Left? by Andrew Gillen). Time: 1950. Alan Turing writes the foundational text in artificial intelligence, entitled Computing Machinery And Intelligence, in which he states that machines can be constructed which exhibit behavior indistinguishable from that of people, and such behavior can be said to be caused by artificial intelligence. If a machine passes the Turing Test and exhibits such behavior, it can be said, in a manner of speaking, to think. Over the past seventy five years, the applications of artificial intelligence have been staggering. Health, medicine, mathematics, finance, education, military, internet, ecommerce, trade, investment, agriculture, games, entertainment, cybersecurity, language translation, facial recognition, and image labeling which detects products in photographs. In the twenty first century, another application has appeared and caused the others to function less effectively. Hanging like a dark cloud over the world of artificial intelligence, the promotion of far left ideologies has rained down disgrace on science and technology.

WELFARE STATE USA

It is a symphony of horror. A nation of the undead feeding on the vital essence of the living. A nation dominated by masses subsisting on stolen wealth. A nation in which the government robs Peter to pay Paul and calls the theft the enforcement of social responsibility. A nation of creatures described in the folklore of the ages. In Romanian mythology, they are called strigoi. In Greek mythology, they are called vrykolakas. In the mythology of the Caribbean and the Americas, they are called chupacabra. They are vampires and they are the controlling population of a nation founded two centuries ago on the proposition that people are born free and not shackled to the chains of the state. In the twenty first century, this nation has rejected its founding proposition and descended into a moral netherworld. In the twenty first century, in an illustration of just how sick the West has become, the nation which once inspired the world as the arsenal of liberty has become a nation following in the footsteps of ancient Rome. In its dying hours, after Julius Caesar led his mobs to overthrew the Roman Republic of liberty, the Roman Empire established a welfare state and enacted alimenta, providing food, income, education and entertainment to the people. Following the same course of decline, the United States of America in the twenty first century, in a crescendo of a one hundred year development, has become a welfare state and established a condition of mass dependency on the government without precedent in its history. The numbers, the programs and the shamelessness of it all are staggering, and illustrating the age old proverb, the taller they are, the harder they fall, show a nation which scaled mountain peaks of constitutional rights raised during the Age of Enlightenment, toppling and crashing into a moral wasteland which has rendered it unrecognizable. In the twenty first century, America has issued a manifesto of public welfare which is so far removed from its founding ethos and constitution that it has plunged the nation into a state of moral extinction, reduced the nation to a shadow of its former self, animated a community of moral corpses and the undead, and rung out the death knell of Western civilization. America's manifesto of treason in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive society is a welfare feeding trough overflowing with tuition grants, veterans' benefits, food stamps and Medicare. A progressive society is welfare bank which gives everybody a government check. A progressive society provides cradle to grave state financial support to the people. A progressive society lavishes federal welfare benefits on the people. A progressive society provides farm payments and housing subsidies to the people. A progressive society sanctions living on the dole as a way of life. A progressive society is a New Deal society which places the people on permanent, lifetime federal assistance. A progressive society is a Social Security society which cossets people for life in a cocoon of welfare support financed by tax plunder. A progressive society is an Aid to Families with Dependent Children society enacted in the name of the collectivist principle, I am my brother's keeper. A progressive society is ravenous beast of socialism in which welfare spending consumes one hundred percent of the government budget. A progressive society pampers the people with government welfare generosity. A progressive society never says no to the people's ever increasing demands for more socialist programs. A progressive society unleashes endlessly expanding welfare expenditures. A progressive society panders to the people and offers no resistance to the people's welfare expectations. A progressive society ruins people's characters by making them feel comfortable with collecting money they do not deserve and being supported by the state for life. A progressive society issues welfare payments to every man and woman alive, rich or poor, good or evil, hardworking or indolent, ambitious or shiftless. A progressive society supports the people with welfare financed by endless credit lines. A progressive society gives people one hundred percent welfare plus one hundred percent tax credits to make them into one hundred percent welfare consumers contributing nothing to the state. A progressive society is a lobby group seeking to keep the welfare money river endlessly flowing. A progressive society is self perpetuating, self sustaining welfare constituency. A progressive society regularly fails credit agencies' tests, has its credit rating regularly downgraded, and is financially bankrupt from reckless, irresponsible welfare spending. A progressive society redistributes wealth from the producers into the hands of a parasitic class of welfare consumers. A progressive society uses welfare payments to change people's behavior and transform them into idle, worthless, good for nothings. A progressive society rejects the ideal of personal independence and inculcates helplessness and weakness in the people. A progressive society has abolished self sufficiency and placed every person, from retirees to veterans to farmers to teachers to investors to students, into an eternal dark womb called the welfare state. A progressive society is a welfare spending leviathan whose members lack individual identity, rights and dignity and pray to the government in control of their lives: "Accusations fly about cutting tuition grants, Medicare, veterans' benefits and food stamps. It's a litany that raises a simple question, Who isn't getting a government check? We all know the nation's budget is huge, but nothing drives the point home like the number of Americans receiving financial support. Add Medicaid, farm payments, housing subsidies and others to the list, and roughly 47% of all Americans are receiving at least one federal benefit. Tax preferences, like the deductions for mortgage interest, retirement savings and health care, bring the number closer to 75%. The dirty little secret about America is that being on the dole is no longer the exception but the rule. The concept of providing payments to individuals didn't figure very prominently in the national dialogue until the early 20th century. Roosevelt's New Deal laid a foundation for federal assistance ranging from Social Security to direct farm payments, and programs like the 1935 Aid to Families with Dependent Children helped cement this trend. Government tailored these early programs narrowly, targeting the oldest or poorest citizens. Often they were viewed as temporary. In the immediate postwar years, federal spending consumed only 15% of GDP, but today it has ballooned to more than 24%. Federal largesse touches just about everyone and changes the behavior of just about everyone it touches. The first casualty is resolve. Easy spending drains our political class of its ability to say no. Funding for job training? It sounds great. Now we have over two dozen different programs that are redundant, poorly targeted and uncoordinated. Pushing for more spending is also the easiest way to show that you're getting something done. Call it pandering, playing to the press or just good politics—it's something that elected officials find tough, and sometimes impossible, to resist. Recipients' behavior changes over time as well. Whether or not they would ever have proposed particular programs, beneficiaries soon become comfortable with the status quo. No one ever stands up to say 'No, thank you' or 'I don't deserve this.' Mohair producers, ethanol blenders and wealthy Social Security recipients might fail the laugh test, but they can chuckle all the way to the bank. Their checks are backed by the full faith and credit of the United States. Sooner or later, vested interests begin gaming the system. Alpaca farmers suddenly appear in the New Jersey suburbs to take advantage of generous tax credits. Powerful associations of aircraft owners or railroad retirees spring up to unite recipients and lobby for more funds. Their lobbyists in Washington, dependent on the funding streams for their livelihood, do everything possible to magnify the importance of the money flow. It becomes a self sustaining cycle in which programs survive not because they are still needed but because they create reliable constituencies at election time. Two generations of this behavior has led right to where we are: with credit rating agencies talking publicly about downgrading US Treasury debt. It's a self inflicted wound. With 47% of Americans receiving benefits, common sense tells us that many recipients already have above average income. Where exactly are we headed? Placing 60% of Americans on public benefits can't possibly make economic sense unless the goal is to redistribute wealth or manipulate personal behavior. Ultimately, the biggest casualty is the ideal of independence. Voters today are characterized according to the programs from which they benefit. Instead of Americans, we are retirees, veterans, farmers, teachers, investors and students. We have become a nation of spending constituencies. In doing so, we've lost a piece of our individual identity and become more complacent about the role of government in our lives." (One Nation, On The Dole by John Sununu). America in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive society is governed by a far left electorate. A progressive society is an expensive, maximum scale, welfare entitlement regime. A progressive society is a Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid and Affordable Care Act monster which has sent the national debt skyrocketing, and devoured fiscal sanity, the federal budget and the freedom of the individual: "Two thirds of the politicians in Washington DC don't want to cut the spending, because two thirds of the electorate don't want to really cut spending. Too many Americans are getting a paycheck from the government. Who isn't getting a check from Uncle Sam these days? And who will pay for this? Americans are retiring at a record pace, and this nation is possibly facing the same demographic demise wreaking havoc in South Korea and Japan. All the talk about cutting waste, fraud, excessive spending, graft, graft, and gruff will be spitting in the wind or shooting at the breeze if we don't get a handle on the expensive and extensive entitlement payments. Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid are devouring the vast majority of our federal budget. Yet even now, President Trump has pledged that he won't do anything to them. If you're taking away the biggest cost, the biggest source of spending in our federal budget, then you're not tackling the debt problem." (DOGE: Government Efficiency? How About Government Elimination? by Arthur Schaper). Emerging from the graveyard of civilization and appearing during the moral night of mankind is a vampire called the welfare state. Animated by the dark electricity of populism, class war and cultural Marxism seeking to undermine free institutions, it has claimed the soul of America in the twenty first century and lowered the curtain on the West.

PRESIDENTS OF EUROPE: MARXISTS, MUSLIMS AND MIGRANTS

He is known as the father of liberalism and is one of the most influential thinkers of the Enlightenment. The author of Two Treatises Of Government and A Letter Concerning Toleration, he was the philosopher and ambassador of the government of freedom to all mankind, and his defense of natural rights would inspire revolutions and rifle shots fired by the soldiers of freedom heard around the world. Proclaiming that every person has a "natural right to defend his life, health, liberty and possessions," he was the voice of Anglo-Saxon philosophy and the cries for freedom spreading throughout Europe and America. Voltaire calls him "le sage Locke," and Thomas Jefferson places him in a triumvirate of stellar thinkers: "Bacon, Locke and Newton, whose pictures I will trouble you to have copied for me, I consider the three greatest men that have ever lived, without any exception, and as having laid the foundation of those superstructures which have been raised in the Physical & Moral sciences." (Letters: 1743 To 1826 by Thomas Jefferson). His name is John Locke and he launched the Western freedom movement which liberated the world. Three centuries after Locke set into motion global waves of human enlightenment, his philosophy has been cast to the winds by terrifying movements presently in charge of Europe. These movements are the antithesis of Locke's demands for state protection of the rights, freedom and dignity of the individual, and they advocate a totalitarian takeover of society under the banners of gender, race and class ideologies. These ideologies are the three heads of a Medusa called Marxism and its hideous faces have turned the West into stone and buried the cause of freedom forever. The monster of Marxism is a bloodthirsty emanation from the moral sewers of mankind and it has been elected into high office in one form or another in every nation in Europe. In the twenty first century, Marxism has achieved victory over the legacies of the Enlightenment, and the old Europe, the Europe of John Locke, the Europe which tamed savage continents and shined a light on dark lands, has been hurled into the dustbin of history by the new Europe, the Europe now in place and getting worse by the hour since the dawn of the twentieth century, the Europe of Karl Marx and his communist and national socialist children. In the twenty first century, every one of Locke's cardinal principles for the establishment of a civilized society, the rights to life, liberty and property, have been abrogated by a regime run by Soviet style commissars whose mission is to collectivize the individual as they open the borders to Muslim mass migration. In the twenty first century, the European establishment has declared on war in the realm of the mind, outlawed freedom of speech, and submerged the continent in a swampland of migrants in place of the quintessentially European free society. In the twenty first century, liberal Europe no longer is liberal Europe and has been conquered by false gods from the red and black Europe of Marx and Hitler. Freedom of Speech. Europe today has issued a manifesto of opposition to freedom of speech. This manifesto proclaims that a progressive society is an authoritarian society which conducts genocide against the opponents of Marxism. A progressive society conducts a holocaust against people who champion the Enlightenment. A progressive society makes people who support capitalism afraid to express themselves. A progressive society bans from the internet people who oppose gender, race and class wars. A progressive society prohibits insults against Marxists and Muslims but encourages insults against conservatives and libertarians. A progressive society is a national socialist type society which exalts blacks in place of Aryans. A progressive society is a national socialist type society which exalts females in place of Aryans. A progressive society condemns politically incorrect speech as hate speech and sends armed Gestapo like officers to raid the homes of people who engage in it. A progressive society sends Gestapo like officers to harass and arrest people who criticize Islam on social media posts. A progressive society outlaws speech critical of Marxism and Islam on the grounds that such is blasphemy. A progressive society outlaws speech critical of multiculturalism on the grounds that such is blasphemy. A progressive society gives leadership and dominance to theologians of Marxist identity politics. A progressive society outlaws freedom of speech as a threat to the people's democracy. A progressive society is an agitation and propaganda factory mass producing Marxist street corner fuhrers. A progressive society is a totalitarian society, a state power society, a one party society, crushing the voices of liberal dissent and leading a global revolution against the traditional values of the Western world: "A top news personality at one of the Big Three TV networks made the outrageously idiotic (or intentionally misleading–take your pick) assertion that free speech under the nazi regime enabled the Holocaust. [Secretary of State Marco Rubio] Rubio admirably shot back, more politely than her historical revisionism deserved: 'I have to disagree with you. Free speech was not used to conduct a genocide. The genocide was conducted by an authoritarian nazi regime that happened to also be genocidal because they hated Jews and they hated minorities. There was no free speech in nazi Germany. There was none. There was also no opposition in nazi Germany. They were the sole and only party that governed that country, and so that's not an accurate reflection of history.' A poll found that only 18% of German citizens feel free to express their opinions in public; only 17% felt free to express themselves on the internet. In Germany, public insults are considered a crime. Check out the video below in which German prosecutors laugh as they confirm for 60 Minutes, another CBS propaganda outlet, that it is a crime to insult people online or to repost a lie on social media. 60 Minutes then joins German police as six armed officers raid a man's home and remove his electronic devices for sharing a racist cartoon online. Meanwhile in the UK, citizens are routinely harassed, if not arrested, by police for social media posts deemed insulting to the protected victim classes, primarily Muslims, or for praying silently in the vicinity of an abortion clinic. Under multiculturalist elites like Prime Minister Keir Starmer, the UK is now on the verge of adopting blasphemy laws to protect Islam from criticism. The propagandists of the legacy media, and the globalist elites that they prop up everywhere throughout the Western world, view freedom of speech as a threat to democracy–by which they mean one party political hegemony–and therefore it must be tightly circumscribed by state power. This is why conventional journalism is dead and why JD Vance's challenge to the increasingly totalitarian European nations we call our allies was so courageous and vital." (CBS: Free Speech Enabled The Holocaust by Mark Tapson). Europe today proclaims that a progressive society mandates the use of biased algorithms on the internet to ensure that all antiMarxist, antiMuslim opinions are excluded. A progressive society enacts a Digital Services Act to suppress politically incorrect speech on social media. A progressive society protects Marxist speech, and only Marxist speech, on the internet in the name of protecting democracy. A progressive society bans nonEuropean voices of freedom on the grounds of preventing foreign interference in elections. A progressive society has constructed a line of censorship around those who champion liberal, Lockean, Enlightenment ideas, people such as Elon Musk, Alice Weidel and the Alternative for Germany, preventing the spread and communication of their dangerous ideas: "Next Tuesday, the European Parliament will discuss with the European Commission the 'need to enforce the Digital Services Act to protect democracy on social media platforms, including against foreign interference and biased algorithms.' The Digital Services Act (DSA) is the central European Union legislation regulating social media. The EU bigwigs in Brussels are up in arms because Elon Musk had a chat on X with Alice Weidel, leader of the Alternative for Germany. The AfD is an increasingly popular right wing party which the EU establishment wants to isolate in a cordon sanitaire. According to the European Commission, Ms Weidel's chat with Mr Musk 'improperly boosts' her agenda over her political rivals ahead of Germany's upcoming February 23 elections and constitutes 'foreign interference' in the German electoral process." (Unlike Trump's America, EU Bigwigs Censor To 'Protect Democracy' From Voters by Geert Wilders). Mass Migration. Europe today proclaims that a progressive society is an open borders society settling enemy aliens ranged liberal democracy streaming in by the millions from the four corners of the earth. A progressive society condemns as lashes of the racist, populist right all those who demand that migrants assimilate to Western Enlightenment values. A progressive society follows the pattern and paradigm of Marxism and allows radical, antiliberal, anticapitalist forces, wherever they are and from wherever they come, to wield absolute power: "2015 Migrant Crisis architect Angela Merkel has again lashed out at her successor in German politics for moving away from the open borders paradigm and working with the populist right, saying she finds it impossible to 'remain silent in such a situation.' Former German Chancellor and leader of the Christian Democrats (CDU) Angela Merkel has again been drawn back into undermining her successor as party leader, just as he fights the final weeks of the election campaign that could put the CDU back in the driving seat of German politics. Friedrich Merz, a rival to Merkel when she was in power, has spent months trying to rebrand the center-right conservative CDU from a party that most associate with recklessly open borders to one that can be trusted with power again. Yet as the party leads the polls in the final weeks of the campaign for the snap Federal elections this week, his leadership has come under withering fire from his predecessor." (With German Elections Looming, Angela Merkel Seems Determined To Sabotage Her Own Party by Oliver JJ Lane). The social contract. An agreement between the individual and the government in which the individual surrenders his right to use force and violence, a right present in a state of anarchy, in exchange for a government's unique, neutral, third party, due process adjudication of disputes. Championed by John Locke, the social contract makes the government legitimate by being the protector of the individual's natural rights to life, liberty and property. In Europe in the twenty first century, Locke's vision of the government as the protector and not the invader of rights has been rejected. In Europe in the twenty first century, the individual has been sentenced to live in fear of an enemy within and an enemy without, enemies called Marxism and Islam.

DEI DOWNS DELTA AIR LINES

It was a routine flight. It departed from Minneapolis-Saint Paul International Airport and its destination was Pearson International Airport in Toronto, Canada. It had eighty people on board, seventy six passengers and four crew members. On February 17, 2025, at 2:13 PM, Delta Air Lines Connection Flight 4819 crashed upon landing and overturned on Runway 23. As flames roared out from the fuselage and billows of black smoke shot into the sky, and ambulances sped to the scene, filling the airport with the wail of sirens and the howl of propellers, a nightmare was blasted out, heard by all who had ears to hear. The Delta Air Lines crash, producing a separated wing, a raging fire, and an upside down fuselage resting in the opposite direction from its landing, was one more casualty of corporate hiring policies which discriminate on the basis of race, sex and sexual orientation, and exalt diversity and inclusion above talent and ability. The spectacular wreckage of Delta Air Lines Connection Flight 4819 was the latest chapter of a nightmare without end called affirmative action, and in the flight recorders retrieved from the crash site is a manifesto of a religion, the reigning religion of our time, a religion called Marxist identity politics, which is killing and injuring people across the West. Listen to Delta Air Lines' manifesto for the twenty first century and hear one more corporate rejection of the principle of nondiscrimination, the cardinal lying at the basis of a liberal society, and one more illustration of just how sick the West has become. The manifesto proclaims that a progressive corporation establishes racist and sexist hiring policies discriminating against white males, and calls its racism and sexism diversity, equity and inclusion, dressing up the unfairness of discriminating against white males as a special, higher form of fairness called equity. A progressive airline affirms that race and gender discrimination against white males is critical to the survival and success of the business. A progressive airline focuses on the race, gender and sexual orientation of job applicants and ignores their talents and abilities. A progressive airline makes hiring judgments ignoring character and qualifications, judgments skewed by far left politics. A progressive airline is fanatical in its commitment to discriminatory hiring and sacrifices assessments of ability on the altar of tribal background. A progressive airline is religiously committed to racist and sexist hiring and sacrifices assessments of competence on an altar overlaid with Marxist identitarian checkboxes. A progressive airline hires gays, lesbians, Native Americans and transgender psychotics who deny biological realities, even if these diversity hires are unqualified and endanger the lives of others: "Delta Air Lines is coming under severe criticism for doubling down on its push for Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, or DEI, just days before Monday's spectacular crash involving a Minneapolis-to-Toronto flight that flipped one of its planes upside down during landing. On February 6, Peter Carter, chief external affairs officer at Delta, said: 'We are steadfast in our commitments because we think that they are actually critical to our business. Sustainability is about being more efficient in our operations and really DE&I is about talent and that's been our focus.' 'The key differentiator at Delta is our people,' Carter added, according to Fox5Atlanta. Among those slamming the airline in harsh terms is comedian Tyler Fischer, a frequent face on the Fox News Channel, who said on X: 'This is from Delta's DEI website. An airline OBSESSED with the race and sexual preferences of their workers. Think the passengers who almost died in Toronto give a flying fuck about if the pilot [has sex with] dudes or the flight attendant's great grandma was a nonbinary Native American? Just land the damn plane right side up. Look at their site it's insane.' Another commenter noted: 'Delta, the epitome of DEI zealotry, now faces the stark reality of their folly. A crash, not of mechanical failure, but of judgment, where diversity trumped skill. The wreckage serves as a stark reminder: competence, not checkboxes, should dictate roles. The cost? Peoples lives!' " ('Diversity Trumped Skill': Delta Air Lines Under Fire For Championing DEI Amid Spectacular Crash by Joe Kovacs). The manifesto of Delta Air Lines in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive airline consciously, actively and boldly discriminates against white, heterosexual males and does so in the name of creating a sense of belonging. A progressive airline focuses on tribes to the exclusion of individuals at the workplace. A progressive airline discriminates against white males in the name of moving the world into a better and more just tomorrow. A progressive airline discriminates against white males in order to enable women and nonwhites to climbing ever higher. A progressive airline discriminates against white males in the name of healing women and nonwhites of the effects of past discrimination. A progressive airline is a showcase of blacks, women, gays, lesbians and transgenders parading inclusion at the expense of ability. A progressive airline is run by a chief executive jackboot enforcing a neoAryan creed of black, brown, female, gay, lesbian and transgender supremacy. A progressive airline engages in discriminatory hiring in the name of closing the representation gap. A progressive airline ignores job applicants' skills and academic abilities and considers only their race, gender and sexual orientation. A progressive airline is the face of racist and sexist travel around the world. A progressive airline is a film, an anthem, a visual library, a set of stories, a collection of images and videos, a presentation of travel content and a center of indoctrination promoting the virtues of racism, sexism and Marxist identity politics on flights to the distant corners of the earth: "We actively seek diversity, boldly pursue equity, and consciously promote inclusion to create a sense of belonging for all people. 'Thoughtful action combined with a focus on championing diversity, equity and inclusion in the workplace and within our personal lives will play a healing role to help us keep climbing. The Delta family will use whatever means we have to move the world toward a better, more just tomorrow.' Ed Bastian, Chief Executive Officer. One of the many ways we are closing representation gaps is by accurately showcasing diverse groups traveling and sharing their stories. In order for people to feel welcomed while traveling, they need to first see themselves represented. Faces of Travel is core to our long term commitment to increase representation and visibility within travel culture. Our campaign includes anthem films as well as a free visual library of images and videos available for all to use in travel content and visual communications. It features travelers of diverse backgrounds exploring different destinations around the globe to create more authentic and inclusive content. Within our society, a premium was historically placed on education when education was not provided equally for all. In order to create a more equitable workforce, we are applying a skills first mindset to hiring and development. We do this by giving equal consideration to a candidate’s skills, background and experience as we would give to education and academic pedigree." (Delta.com, Diversity, Equity and Inclusion: Lifting As We Climb). Delta Air Lines in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive airline engages in racist and sexist hiring and discrimination against white males in the name of connecting with and reflecting the world. A progressive airline is run by an executive council whose remit is to plant the dark tree of racism, sexism and tribal politics into every aspect and activity of the organization. A progressive airline is run by strategists and tacticians of race and gender politics. A progressive airline is run by thought police enforcing the race and gender party line, A progressive airline is run by business resource groups whose remit is to promote racist and sexist metrics, programs, proposals, diversity, equity and inclusion in the name of antiracism, antisexism, antidiscrimination, and achieving proportional representation and systemic change: "At Delta, we are committed to Diversity, Equity and Inclusion in the broadest sense as part of our work to connect and reflect the world. Delta drives meaningful impact by actively seeking diversity, boldly pursuing equity and consciously promoting inclusion while holding ourselves accountable to these goals. Delta's senior cross divisional Diversity, Equity & Inclusion Council, made up nearly 30 executive leaders, ensures these goals are embedded throughout the organization by evaluating corporate and divisional metrics, programs and proposals. We also have 10 Business Resource Groups with over 24,000 actively engaged employees to ensure that diverse perspectives are brought to the table, serving as our strategists and thought leaders on business issues. As part of our holistic, comprehensive DEI strategy, Delta has placed a focus on closing representation gaps and systemic change by becoming an antiracism, antidiscrimination organization." (Women Who Keep Delta Climbing: First Officer Monique Grayson, Delta Air Lines, March 8, 2021). On February 18, 2025, the cockpit voice recorder and the flight data recorder were retrieved from the wreckage of Delta Air Lines Connection Flight 4819. On the devices are the voices of Marxist and Hitlerite horsemen of the apocalypse. On the devices are the voices of tribalism, the voices of radical blacks, women, lesbians, gays, bisexuals, transgenders, queers, nonbinaries, diversity, equity, inclusion, quotas, affirmative action, proportional representation and endless Pride Months, ranged together and advancing on the capital cities and liberal communities of the West.

GERMANY RED AND BROWN: THE SHAME OF EUROPE

Turkey seems to be falling to pieces, and the fall will be a great misfortune. It is very important that England and Russia come to a perfectly good understanding and that neither should take any decisive step of which the other is not aware. We have a sick man on our hands, a man gravely ill, and it will be a great misfortune if one of these days he slips through our hands, especially before the necessary arrangements are made. (England And The Near East by Harold Temperley). Thus spoke Czar Nicholas I of Russia, describing Turkey in a conversation with British Ambassador G. H. Seymour on January 9, 1853. A sick man. The sick man of Europe. Since the time this description of the nation which ruled the Ottoman Empire was offered, a nightmare procession of sick nations has afflicted the continent which gave rise to the West. They have caused wars, oppression, dictatorship and the wholesale destruction of people and places, and when they struck, they turned back the hands of time. Among the nations of Europe, excluding Russia which is not part of the West, one nation has enjoyed the dubious honor of being the sick man on three occasions. On the first two, it spread horror and devastation throughout the continent and the world, starting two world wars, and in its latest role, it has brought disgrace to Europe as a bastion and bulwark of far left politics. The Germany of the Kaiser and the Germany of Hitler spread a creed of authoritarianism, collectivism and totalitarian tyranny with rifles, tanks, soldiers and airplanes, and the Germany of the twenty first century has continued the far left assault, conducted as in yesteryear under the flags of national socialism and Marxism, and enacted programs and policies designed to repeal the Western Enlightenment. Germany in the twenty first century has reverted to type, and shown one more time, shown beyond the shadow of a doubt, that liberal charters and constitutions, exemplified in the preHitler Weimar Constitution and the postwar Basic Law of the Federal Republic, have as much relation to the German national character as King Arthur's dwarf Tom Thumb to the Giant's clothes, and are doomed to be cast aside by onrushing mobs clamoring for radicalism and revolution, and clamoring in quintessentially German, heel clicking, goose stepping tones. Germany in the twenty first century, like Germany during the Weimar Republic, is a battleground dominated by armies of redshirts and brownshirts, Marxists and national socialists, fighting for control over a society grown blazing hot and vaporizing liberal sanity. Look at Germany in the twenty first century and see a stagnant swampland, see the voices of fever and delirium, see the carriers of mental disease attack the traditions and institutions of reason, truth, objectivity, science and common sense, which never had a chance to grow or flourish in the land of poisons dispensed in vials labeled Kant, Hegel, Marx and Hitler. Marxism. Look at Germany in the twenty first century and see Marxist police raid people's homes, seize their laptops and mobile phones, and arrest them for speech crimes. See politically incorrect cartoons banned in the name of combating racism and protecting democracy. See a Marxist establishment trample over Western liberty and the right of free speech. See Marxist prosecutors place constitutional rights in the prisoner's dock. See criticism of Muslim terror, Marxist gender, race and class politics, and the settlement of one million refugees from Syria and Afghanistan in 2015-2016 under Angela Merkel, and 1.2 million Ukrainian refugees since the onset of the Russia-Ukraine war in 2022, condemned as hate speech. See criticism of Germany's Marxist "welcome culture" opening the borders to the migrant scum of the earth condemned as hate speech. See Marxist judges and prosecutors proclaim that free speech does not mean free speech, and speech must be limited by the requirement to support the Marxist party line. See Marxist courts criminalize politically incorrect insults, gossip, defamation, threats, quotes and falsehoods, and lock up freedom in jail cells marked speech crime convictions. See Marxist courts only allow Marxist contributions to political discussions and prohibit all others. See Marxist police task forces target and hunt down dissidents throughout the nation with special software and government data. See a Marxist police apparatus spread a Soviet type net of control over the channels of mass communication. See Marxist thought police kidnap the voices of dissent and jail them as prisoners of conscience. See Marxist courts condemn as extremist those who voice opposition to stabbings by migrants, machete assaults by migrants, and car rammings by migrants, killing men, women and children. See the Marxist establishment construct an Iron Curtain around people opposed to the invasion of the West by rabid animals from alien lands peddling Satan's gospel of ignorance and fear: "American broadcaster CBS followed German police as they raided home for speech crimes, such as posting a 'racist cartoon' on the internet, which prosecutors in the country defended as a supposedly necessary safeguard to protect democracy. Just days after US Vice President JD Vance lambasted Germany and other European states for failing to live up to Western ideals of liberty, particularly on the issue of free speech, CBS's 60 Minutes news magazine broadcast footage of police raids over social media posts and interviews with prosecutors defending the draconian practice. 'It's 6:01 on a Tuesday morning, and we were with state police as they raided this apartment in Northwest Germany. Inside six armed officers searched a suspect's home, then seized his laptop and cellphone. Prosecutors say those electronics may have been used to commit a crime, the crime; posting a racist cartoon online,' 60 Minutes anchor Sharyn Alfonsi described. Unlike the United States, where the First Amendment protects citizens from being arrested over socalled hate speech, it is a very different story in Germany. Local prosecutors told the American broadcaster that there are currently 16 dedicated police task forces monitoring hate speech on the German web, with around 3,500 cases per year. Prosecutor Frank-Michael Laue told the news program that his unit alone has successfully secured 750 speech crime convictions over the past four years. Fellow prosecutor Dr Matthaus Fink said that many of those arrested for online speech crimes believed that their posts were protected free speech, 'And we say, No, you have free speech as well, but it is also has its limits.' The prosecutors explained that people in Germany can be jailed for public insults—including against politicians—spreading malicious gossip, making violent threats, inventing fake quotes, or even reposting lies online. They claimed that in most instances, offenders are fined and sometimes have their devices seized. 'Comments like You're son of a bitch, excuse me for using, but these words has nothing to do with a political discussions or a contribution to a discussion,' Fink asserted. They said that their task forces have access to special software to target anonymous users who violate speech laws, while investigators are given access to government data to hunt down thought criminals. The program on Germany's censorious police apparatus came just days after Vice President JD Vance excoriated European states, including Germany, for failing to uphold freedom of speech and comparing the tactics to the Soviet Union. 'The threat that I worry the most about vis a vis Europe is not Russia, it's not China, it's not any other external actor. What I worry about is the threat from within. The retreat of Europe from some of its most fundamental values: values shared with the United States of America,' Vance said at the Munich Security Conference last week. Vance also criticized the political establishment in Berlin for its firewall around the antimass migration Alternative for Germany (AfD) party, which currently stands as the second strongest in the polls ahead of next week's federal elections. In addition to refusing to work with the party, politicians throughout Germany have also called for the AfD to be banned outright over supposed extremism." (Vance Vindicated: CBS Follows German Police

On Raid Over 'Racist Cartoon' Posted Online by Kurt Zindulka). National Socialism. Look at Germany in the twenty first century and see Hitler's national socialists return to life, march on the nation's capital cities and lengthen their shadow across the land. See liberal order trampled over by the jackboots of neoMarxist ethnic war and nationalist war. See people called extreme rightists by the Marxist establishment in fact represent another branch of the extreme left, the German supremacist, national Bolshevik, national collectivist, race Marxist branch, and like their communist brothers, seek to shred Germany's constitution: "A political tidal wave is crashing across Germany. Never before in postwar Germany has a hard right party been so successful, while on the cusp of being identified as a threat to the Federal Republic and its liberal constitution. France's influential opposition leader, Marine Le Pen, whose party is also considered far right, has distanced herself from the AfD on the European stage, apparently judging its positions and ethnonationalist reputation too radical. The long held assumption among the mainstream at home and abroad had been that Germany's dark past immunized it against any serious flirtations with the extreme right. It's worth noting that in May, a German court found that 'at least a significant part of the AfD' believed that anyone with a migrant heritage was not 'properly German'--even if they held German citizenship. It concluded that the AfD aimed to 'grant German citizens with a migration background only a legally devalued status.' This goes against the German constitution." (Far Right Looks For Election Breakthrough As Germany Falters by Katya Adler). November 9, 1918, Kaiser Wilhelm proclaims the Weimar Republic. A liberal republic subverted by political extremism and contending paramilitaries representing the brother ideologies of national socialism and international socialism, it is officially abolished by Adolf Hitler in 1933. A century after its abolition, the paramilitaries are back in business, Germany is back to Germany, and freedom lies in ruins beneath the victory flags of the hammer and sickle and the swastika.

LAW SCHOOLS EXPEL TRUTH

In the Rosenborg Castle in Copenhagen, Denmark hangs a masterpiece. It is a painting by seventeenth Danish painter Pieter Isaacz entitled Lecture In A Knight Academy, and it is part of a series of seven painting depicting the seven liberal arts. The painting depicts the art of rhetoric. Rhetoric. One of ancient arts of discourse along with language and logic. Rhetoric. The study of the techniques of persuading audiences by means of logical argumentation. In his Politics, Aristotle defines rhetoric as "the science of logic applied to ethics and politics." In Classical culture, the study of logical argumentation was central to a legal education, and it continued to be so in the West up until the twenty first century. Reversing two thousand years of educational tradition spanning two cultures, Classical and Western, law schools today have abandoned the principles of reason and descended into a program of ideological indoctrination. Rejecting the traditional aim of law schools to teach students how to think critically and advance logical arguments, today's law schools teach religion. They teach the number one religion of out time, a religion which has taken hold of the masses as it has rejected the Enlightenment, and brought civilization into a death spiral of moral and mental degeneration. Today's law schools teach the tenets of Marxism and its offshoots and derivatives. Comprised of radical faculty, radical students, illegal encampments, round the clock rioters and window smashing activists, today's law schools have declared war on civilized society and become a congregation for the doctrines of the faith. In an illustration of just how sick the West has become in the twenty first century, today's law schools have become pseudoIvy League environments disgracing the traditional Ivy League, institutions hostile to the pursuit of truth which has defined legal education since time immemorial, and have made a travesty of the rule of law. Today's law schools have issued a manifesto of antireason, antilaw and antiEnlightenment which has consigned traditional legal education to the dustbin of history. This manifesto proclaims that a progressive law school teaches that the meaning of laws is not fixed, laws do not say what they say, but their meaning should reflect the changing needs of society. A progressive law school rejects the tradition of neutral courts to adjudicate disputes in favor of biased, ideological courts. A progressive law school rejects the tradition of free speech and free inquiry in favor of ideological lockstep. A progressive law school teaches that the best arguments are those based on ideological premises which pander to gender, race and class groups. A progressive law school is a political school which replaces legal issues with mob issues. A progressive law school rejects the adversarial system of discovering truth in court, in which opposing parties present their arguments, submit evidence and interview witnesses, in favor of a system of directed, ideologically based verdicts. A progressive law school deemphasizes rational, analytic skills in favor of the Marxist politics of tribal identity. A progressive law school promotes people's republics of gender, race and class tyranny. A progressive law school rejects the liberal governmental tradition of a political balance of power in favor of unrestricted, majoritarian rule immune to judicial review. A progressive law school rejects the the rule of the free market and the right to private property in favor of a statist, regulatory regime. A progressive law defines human flourishing as a life of blind obedience to state rules and regimentation. A progressive law school is a mass shaming and coercion culture directed against the opponents of identity politics. A progressive law school refuses to hear ideas contradicting the people's party line and shouts down the opponents of Marxist totalitarianism. A progressive law school condemns all views opposed to radical feminism, black nationalism, gay politics, lesbian politics and transgender rights, and proclaims them off limits for discussion. A progressive law school is fervently committed to Marxism and seeks to transform the law into a weapon of race and gender politics. A progressive law school subordinates the individual to the collective and the rule of law to the pursuit of social justice. A progressive law school rejects freedom of thought and the requirement for rational argumentation as forms of white male oppression. A progressive law school is an advocacy organization for confiscatory taxation, union violence and black power. A progressive law school teaches that the ideal society is a regime of political correctness run by a government of commissars and not of laws. A progressive law school teaches that ideal law is a synonym for acts of far left violence. A progressive law school rejects objective facts and morality as a lash of white male power against women and nonwhites. A progressive law school is a political commitment to black, brown and female identity. A progressive law school is a Marxist theological monolith grinding liberal arts education into dust. A progressive law school hires blacks and women faculty and discriminates against white males in the name of achieving diversity, inclusion and a special, higher form of fairness, transcending ordinary fairness, a form called equity. A progressive law school exclusively hires Marxist black and women faculty in the name of achieving proportional representation. A progressive law school teaches public law as a regime of Marxist public brute force. A progressive law school is not a liberal academy but an ideological training ground demanding unwavering uniformity. A progressive law school rejects the method of rational inquiry, rational examination, rational questioning, rational dialogue and rational debate as unfair to women. A progressive law school rejects as dangerous all forms of independent instruction unrestrained by ideology because such may lead to controversial discussions examining the criminal nature of Marxism. A progressive law school orders professors to avoid all topics which may offend radical black and women students, such as the unfairness of affirmative action policies which discriminate against white males, and orders them to avoid student and administration violence by censoring themselves, conforming to the law school party line, and goose stepping to class in ideological oneness and unity: "Law schools matter. They serve, after all, as the gatekeeping institution of the legal profession—a key occupation in a democratic republic. Such a republic depends on the core notion of being a 'government not of men, but of laws.' A government of men controls by arbitrariness; a government of laws controls through transparent rules that allow citizens to make choices over time. It’s essential that law be protected from political caprice. But laws are often not entirely clear, and men and women legitimately dispute their content and meaning. A central purpose of the legal system is to clarify these rules through adversarial presentations, leading to authoritative decisions by neutral tribunals. Just as the adversary system perfects the rule of law, so a robust culture of free speech and inquiry perfects the adversary system. What the best arguments are, or even what makes an argument best, is often itself unclear and disputed. A culture of exploring arguments vigorously before they reach court, without fear of retaliation, complements the adversary system and improves our governance. Any free society needs the rule of law, the adversary system, and a culture of free speech and inquiry in law, but this is particularly true of the United States. Nearly two centuries ago, Alexis de Tocqueville observed of the American republic that almost all political issues there became legal issues, and that remains the case today. It's the law that preserves the US Constitution's balance of powers, preventing tyranny. When English departments, say, are consumed by the politics of identity, they marginalize mostly themselves. The classes they teach no longer provide students with analytic skills, and the books they assign no longer stir student souls. By contrast, law schools remain important to society, whatever their quality, because lawyers remain essential to a modern market democracy. At their best, law schools facilitate responsible advocacy and inculcate a respect in future lawyers that law isn't simply politics by another name, but instead the basis of a rule based order needed for human flourishing. If law schools lose sight of this, society suffers. Today, many, if not most, law schools, like English departments, have become ideologically and structurally committed to the left, especially on issues of race and gender. Since the new ideology of race and gender claims to affect almost everything, almost everything that law schools do is now distorted; the freedom of speech and inquiry that makes the adversary system work for society's benefit is threatened. A focus on identity rather than argument leads directly to cancel culture —even at law schools, where debate should be central, because ideas that some believe threaten identity are rendered off limits. And the circle of cancellation is ever widening: Stanford students shouted down Judge Kyle Duncan and prevented him from speaking at a recent Federalist Society event, not even because of what he was to talk about there but because of his past writings on other subjects. Liberal professors have predominated in law schools for a long time, but their dominion did not conflict with the adversary system. These professors remained committed to hearing ideas with which many liberals disagreed, and they appreciated the importance of separating rules from politics. These older style liberals may have pursued social justice in their legal work, but they did not impose a definition of it on their schools. Further, the social justice that they sought—more power for labor unions, say, or higher taxes on the rich—was compatible with freedom of speech and inquiry about such things." (Law, Betrayed by John McGinnis). A life without examination is not worth living. Thus speaks Socrates, founder of the argumentative dialogue between individuals involving asking and answering questions, and scrutinizing beliefs, with the aim of determining their internal consistency and their correspondence with reality. This master philosopher of ancient Greece describes his method as midwifery because through constant questioning and answering, it helps the parties give birth to truth and understanding in a process analogous to a child developing in the womb. The Socratic Method was an integral part of legal education until the twenty first century, involving professors questioning students to bring forth views and arrive at the correct interpretations of cases and controversies. In the twenty first century, law schools have fallen under the control of religion and banished the Socratic Method. In twenty first century law schools, there is no reasoned disputation, no critical examination, no questioning of ideas. The campus trembles before ideological marches, parades and formations, and liberal traditions tumble to the ground.

AMERICA'S CAMPUS WARS

Time: August 2, 216 BC. Place: the ancient village of Cannae in southeast Italy. Action: in the second

battle of the forty three year Punic War between Rome and Carthage, the Carthaginians, led by Hannibal, surround and annihilate the larger Roman army, led by Paullus and Varro. Hannibal employs the tactic of double envelopment or the pincer movement in which army forces simultaneously attack both flanks of the enemy. Hannibal's use of the pincer movement in the Battle of Cannae was the first recorded use of the tactic. It was the greatest tactical feat in military history and established Hannibal as the greatest general in antiquity. In the twenty first century, during the dying hours of the West, the advancing Grim Reaper has sent his armies to surround and shut down the universities of the former leader of the free world. This nation had been sick since the dawn of the twentieth century and had been growing sicker by the second. Like the West, it had become sick from the abandonment of reason. In the twenty first century, the sickness had become rabid and virulent, and had brought forth a pincer movement to attack the citadels of the mind. In the twenty first century, the Grim Reaper, commander of the armies of unreason destroying the West, has sent forth his armies in the manner of Hannibal and annihilated the institutions of higher education in the United States of America. The armies involved in the attack, descending upon campus simultaneously, are the age old manifestations of the revolt against reason, threatening civilizations for thousands of years. One side is composed of those who worship a supernatural reality held to exist in a heavenly dimension beyond space and time, while the other side is composed of those who worship at the altar of matter and reject the existence of mind, and proclaim that the individual exists to serve social groups on earth. One side is composed of those who worship God in Heaven, while the other side is composed of those who worship God in the form of social groups on earth. In the Grim Reaper's pincer movement against American universities, these groups are represented by Christians and Marxists, and these mystics of otherworldly Heaven and animal tribalism on earth have lowered the curtain on the nation's liberal academic traditions. Listen to the proclamations of the two camps as they fight against each other, fight against the rule of reason and fight against the legacies of the Enlightenment; listen to the camps of Marxist collectivists and Christian supernaturalists; and hear the final act of a tragedy. Listen to a culture war fought between materialists and spiritualists and hear the death knell of Western civilization. The two engulfing formations of the Grim Reaper-Hannibal pincer army reject the scientific method of empiricism. Marxists sacrifice objective truth on the altar of gender, race and class identity politics. Marxists seek to enforce policies of race and gender discrimination targeting white males, and justify their racism and sexism in the name of achieving diversity, inclusion and a special, higher form of fairness, transcending ordinary conceptions of fairness, called equity. Marxists seek to allocate science research funding to programs which support race and gender politics, and diversity and inclusion policies. Both Marxists and Christians seek to defund academic programs incompatible with their religion. Both seek to impose religious tests on tenure. Both seek to surveil professors for viewpoints opposed to their religion. Both seek to forbid all forms of speech which oppose their religion. Both seek to censor the voices of liberal dissent. Both seek to abolish open, unfettered inquiry. Both seek to punish religious nonconformity and enforce religious orthodoxy. Both seek to establish a reactionary social order which turns back the clock to benighted ages before the advent of civilized man. Both condemn nonpartisan science and dispassionate professors as threats to their religion. Both seek to sacrifice scientific care and thoroughness upon the altar of religious expediency. Both demand that scientists censor themselves, confine themselves to discussing religiously safe topics, and avoid all topics creating controversies among their comrades. Both seek to impose religious control over faculty hiring and the development of the curriculum. Both seek to wield bureaucratic, governmental and administrative power to regiment the expression of thoughts and opinions. Both oppose academic freedom and seek to transform universities into propaganda towers emitting flames of global revolution: "American universities have become ground zero for the nation’s ongoing culture wars. Once seen as institutions dedicated to reason and empirical inquiry, universities now find themselves under attack from both the left and the right.

Conservative politicians, emboldened by the populist distrust of elites, have sought to defund academic programs, impose ideological tests on tenure, and surveil faculty for perceived biases. State legislatures in Florida, Indiana, and Idaho, among others, have passed legislation directly forbidding types of speech, degrading tenure, and defunding programs that they find problematic. Meanwhile, postmodern [postEnlightenment] academic currents, rooted in identity politics, have questioned the legitimacy of objective truth itself, sometimes using administrative mechanisms to censor dissenting voices. The result? A climate where neither the political right nor left fully supports open inquiry. Instead, faculty are squeezed between reactionary state legislatures that punish ideological nonconformity and progressive administrators who enforce ideological orthodoxy through 'diversity, equity, and inclusion' mandates and speech codes. The war on academia extends beyond the university walls. Public trust in science and higher education has become deeply polarized, with conservatives increasingly viewing scientists and professors as ideological threats. Meanwhile, once driven by scientific merit, federal research funding has been politicized. Under Democratic administrations, funding agencies like the National Science Foundation have prioritized research tied to diversity and inclusion, sometimes at the expense of scientific rigor. When research funding and academic hiring are subjected to ideological tests—whether from the left or the right—the pursuit of knowledge becomes secondary to political expediency. Scientists self censor, choosing safe topics that align with prevailing orthodoxies. Once the stewards of intellectual inquiry, faculty become employees subject to ideological litmus tests. Conservative legislatures are imposing political control over faculty hiring and curriculum decisions. Liberal administrators are using progressive policies to justify greater bureaucratic power. Federal funding agencies are prioritizing ideological agendas over scientific discovery. we must reaffirm our commitment to academic freedom—because without it, the university is nothing more than a tool for power and propaganda. Prometheus brought fire to humanity and was punished for it. Today, the American professoriate is chained to the rock, its autonomy and purpose under siege from all sides. The question remains: Will we fight to break free, or will we watch as the fire of knowledge is extinguished?" (The American University In Crisis: A War On Science, Faculty, And Freedom by Kenneth Corvo). Marxists at America's universities proclaim that progressive higher education rejects the Enlightenment notions of human universalism and universal truth and offers a curriculum based on tribal identity. Progressive higher education is a course of black studies, women's studies, gay studies, lesbian studies, transgender studies, Muslim studies, Jewish Studies, Asian Studies and Native American studies. Progressive higher education does not teach students how to think but teaches them what to think and is a course of indoctrination in Marxist identitarianism. Progressive higher education promotes critical race theory and suppresses the voices of dissent. According to this theory, progressive politics is critical of the Enlightenment, and promotes in its place race Marxist theory, black communist theory and black Aryan theory, and has repurposed Hitler's gas chambers for a holocaust against whites. Progressive higher education rejects the right to free speech as a lash of patriarchal oppression and an open door to acts of microaggression committed by critics of Marxism. Progressive higher education allows free speech to the voices of Marxism and to no one else, and allows Marxist to shout death to capitalists!, death to whites!, death to Jews!, death to Israel! and death to the West!: "On Monday's broadcast of the Fox Business Network's Kudlow, Harvard Law Professor Alan Dershowitz argued that various studies departments such as 'Black Studies, Gay Studies, South Asian Studies, Jewish Studies' should all be abolished.' Dershowitz stated, '[T]hese departments have tenured professors who can't be fired. The departments, however, can be abolished. And we should abolish Black Studies, Gay Studies, South Asian Studies, Jewish Studies. You go to a university to study, to learn how to think, not to be part of a club, not to become part of a cheering section. And these departments, some of them are quite good academically, but many of them, for example, Critical Race Theory, there's no such thing. If you're critical of race politics, you're not allowed in, it's uncritical race theory, and it's uncritical study and it’s rooting sessions for these identity politics groups and it’s destroying education. Look, Harvard ranked last, last on free speech. And suddenly, Gay discovered free speech on October 7 and these other presidents discovered free speech. They discovered it when it was used against Jews. They didn’t know about free speech when it was claimed by people who had been accused of microaggressions. Free speech was a patriarchial thing of the past, but now, suddenly, they’re all hanging on to free speech in order to justify their failure to do anything and say anything about people on campus who are calling for the death of Jews.' " (Dershowitz: Identity Group ‘Studies’ Programs Should Be Abolished by Ian Hanchett). A skull and crossbones is a symbol consisting of a human skull and two long bones crossed together behind it. Originating in the Christian Dark Ages, it was a symbol of death and was placed on tombstones throughout Europe. In modern times, it is used as a symbol for poison, and is featured in the international pictogram for poisonous substances. Patriotic, civilized Americans supporting the ideals of the nation founded in the traditions of the Enlightenment project this fearsome pictogram for poison at the entrance to every university in America. Demanding the return of the university to the Dark Ages, the Christian Right stands behind the entrance. Demanding the reversion of society to the prehistoric eons of tribal war, the Marxist left stands behind the entrance. In the twenty first century, America's universities are poison.
